Foreword

Nigeria is a big country: almost a million square kilometres in extent, stretching from the mangrove swamps of the Niger delta in the south to the arid outskirts of the Sahel in the north. It is home to over 200 million citizens living in thousands of settlements which range from tiny roadless villages to the megalopolis of Lagos. Postal services started in the mid-nineteenth century in Lagos then spread along the trading centres of the Niger delta and up the Niger river. By the early years of the twentieth century the post had expanded to cover all of what, in 1914, became the nation of Nigeria. That makes for a rich postal history.

This study concentrates on the post offices and agencies, and the devices they used for cancelling mail. It builds on the work of philatelists from Herbert Porter, John Forrest and Colin McCaig through to three key books published in the 1990s, which between them cover the period from the beginning of postal services to the end of 1980. These books, by Ince and Sacher (1)[1], by Jones (2) and by Proud (3) are referred to by their authors' names in this study. Much of what follows consists of codifying and updating the information in those books, but includes available information on cancellers and offices from 1981 onwards. The tables which constitute the main part of this publication, contain illustrated descriptions to help the reader identify cancellations[2], and lists, by office, of all cancels known to the author, together with usage dates.

This book is created in landscape format to accommodate the tables from page 24. To improve legibility the text pages are set up as two columns

Section 1. Why collect Nigerian cancellations?

Nigeria, or at least post-1914 Nigeria, is not a particularly 'fashionable' area of collecting, despite the size of the country and its long history of postal services. However, this means that there is plenty of material available, and collecting Nigerian cancels offers some advantages, including reasonable cost and the potential for making new discoveries.

Plenty to collect:

This work includes information on approximately 8,200 cancels, from just over 2,000 different offices. That is significantly less than the real total, but is still a considerable target. The potential volume of material leads most cancellation collectors to specialise: for example, in pre-1914, or pre-independence cancels. Others collect cancellations to support postal history projects, such as tracing postal routes or focusing on an aspect such as railways, or a region.

Another decision is whether to collect an example of as many different cancels as possible, whether to look particularly for cancels which are earlier or later than the currently known usage dates, and whether to collect cancels on cover. Covers often provide extra information to the postal historian: postal markings of various sorts, destinations, often the sender's name and address and, if backstamped, an indication of the route taken by the item. Covers of course cost more, and are less easy to store, but displays are generally enlivened by their inclusion.

Widely available:

Nigerian stamps, covers and accumulations are widely available, especially via online auction sites, and provide a stream of new material to look through. Early collections are less common (and more likely to have been filleted for interesting cancellations), and so too is material after 2000, as use of postal services declined. Auction houses and dealers usually have a significant amount of the more expensive Nigerian material on offer.

Cost:

Accumulations of stamps to sift for cancels will cost relatively little, and most individually-named cancellations can be bought for a pound or two. Scarce cancels may be considerably more expensive, especially if bought from a specialist dealer. The same applies to covers.

'What is a cancellation worth?' tempts the response 'Whatever you are willing to pay for it'. Proud's book gives an off-the-cuff estimate of value for each cancel shown, and in most cases, for covers too. 'Standard' (ie common) cancels on a stamp or small piece, at least two-thirds complete, are notionally valued at 10p, rising to £1 for most Postal Agency 'skeleton' cancels and £50 or more for very scarce material. Covers are generally valued at two to ten times the cost of the same cancel on an individual stamp. Proud's suggested values are to be taken with the proverbial 'pinch of salt', and the collector will rapidly establish his or her own view.

Scarcity is an important criterion: strikes from cancellers used for a brief period, from a small office, a long time ago, are likely to be scarce and hence more valuable. The tables in this book give known use dates for the cancellations listed. Other considerations affecting value include

- Completeness: is the cancel entire or partial?
- Condition: is the cancel cleanly struck on a stamp or a piece, which is not grubby, creased or torn?
- Use date: is the date clear, and does it extend the currently known range of usage dates?
- Need: does the cancel fill a gap in one's collection?

The same considerations apply to covers, with additional factors affecting market value as mentioned earlier.

- 'Internal' covers, to destinations in Nigeria, are less likely to have been preserved than ones sent to overseas destinations.
- Registered covers usually include cancels from offices mail passed through, which can show postal routes.
- Covers may have additional interesting markings, showing registration, postage due, late posting, and so on.
- Covers generally show how much postage was paid, which should (but may not) correspond to correct postal rates at the time.
- Covers may contain interesting correspondence, come from an interesting source or be addressed to a noteworthy recipient.

Support:

Nigerian philately is one of the key areas supported by the West Africa Study Circle (WASC), to which most specialists in the area belong. WASC promotes research via meetings, the journal Cameo, publications such as this book, and a range of online resources. One of the key benefits of WASC membership is the contact with fellow collectors who are happy to share information and to help with queries.

More to discover:

Because archive documents in Nigeria are often either missing or inaccessible, Nigerian postal history is a 'work in progress'. Although there is a significant body of information available on cancels and related topics, one of the reasons for writing this book is to provide an update to material published in the 1990s. As the following suggest, there is still plenty to discover.

- We know the names of over 700 offices which opened up to 1981, for which no cancellations have as yet been reported. Cancels are not known from many of the 1,500 or more offices which opened after 1981.
- Unrecorded cancellations for known offices turn up regularly
- A look at the date ranges of known cancellations from many offices shows periods of time for which no cancel has been recorded. In some cases this is because the office was not in operation, but one suspects that cancels for the intermediate dates have simply not been found.

Section 2. The scope of this publication

What is a cancellation? A narrow definition, such as 'a postal marking applied on a postage stamp or postal stationery to deface the stamp and to prevent its reuse', serves to distinguish cancellations from other postal markings such as cachets to show registration, underpaid postage. However, cancellations may also provide information, such as where an item was posted, the time of day it was received, and the counter or the clerk dealing with the item. Cancellations may be applied not to deface the stamp, but to show when an item arrived at its destination and / or the offices it passed through in transit, often as a means of tracking registered mail.

This study includes cancellers used to deface and cancellers used 'in transit' to track items through the postal system. It includes 'Official Paid' and 'Returned Letter Office' cancellations, and the use of other instruments such as Savings Bank and Telegraph handstamps when these were used as mail cancellers. It does not include the following.

- Other postal markings, such as registration cachets and labels, markings to show tax due on underpaid items, late fees, 'Posted out of Course' markings, censor markings, private or military cachets. Ince and Sacher, Jones, and Proud all provide some information on other markings, and censorship is dealt with comprehensively in Martin, Walton and Harris (4).

- The Consular handstamps and the large double-ring Telegraph cancellers from pre-1914 which were occasionally used to cancel mail.
- Machine cancellations. Proud includes machine cancellations used up to October 1960.
- Meter cancellations. Large businesses such as Nigerian banks began using franking machines in the mid-1950s, but there has been no comprehensive survey of these combinations of stamp and cancellation.
- First day cover and other 'special' cancellations. A selection of these is shown in Jones on page 280.
- The cancels used by the private Nigeria Airways Letter Service (5).
- Cancellations, such as Paquebot cancels, applied to mail after it had left Nigeria.
- Forged cancellations, used either to 'convert' mint stamps into more valuable ones, or to imply that fraudulent mail had been officially posted. These are described in a Cameo article (6).

Cancellations used in territories which became part of Nigeria on amalgamation in 1914 are included, but cancellations used in Biafra during the secession of May 1967 to January 1970 are not (though some cancellers with 'Nigeria' removed continued in use after re-unification and are included). Prestedge's book on Biafran stamps and postal history (7) provides much information on Biafran postal services, including cancellations.

Territorial exchanges between Nigeria and the Cameroons lead to some offices (and their cancellers) being in both countries at different times. This study follows Jones in not including offices which became part of the Cameroon Republic in 1961, even if they had earlier 'belonged' in Nigeria, and had used cancellers which give 'Nigeria' as the country. Proud includes information on Cameroons offices up to late 1960. Maddocks and Bratzel's book on Cameroons Postal History (8) and their 115 page supplement (9) cover up to 1961, and Bratzel, Wright and Parren (10) cover from 1960 to 2014.

Nigerian stamps, postage rates, postal stationery and other aspects of Nigerian postal history are outside the remit of this work.

Section 3. Information sources

People have been collecting Nigerian cancellations for a long time. It is likely that the diversity of code letters and colours shown on cancellations from offices in the Oil Rivers and Niger Coast reflected a wish to supply collectors in the late 19th century, and the many carefully clipped examples of postmarks on piece from that era onwards suggest that cancels were collected in their own right over many decades. Postmarks were included in Melville's 1924 monograph on Oil Rivers and Niger Coast philately (11).

a. Collectors and their publications

i. 1930 onwards

One of the first publications concentrating on cancellations was Herbert Porter's 1935 article 'The Postmarks of Southern Nigeria' (12). From the 1930s onwards, Porter began a systematic attempt to collect examples of cancellations issued by every new office. Whenever a new office was announced in the official Nigerian Gazette he (or usually his representative in Nigeria, Arthur Pretious) sent the postmaster a registered envelope containing a stamped addressed envelope (SAE), which usually contained a clipping from the Nigerian Gazette and a Certificate of Posting, to be sent to Porter in Liverpool. The covering letter asked the postmaster to return the original registered envelope (with its cargo of backstamps) to Porter in the SAE, duly cancelled with the new office's canceller.

Porter's notes in the WASC archive show that he was energetic in chasing up unreturned SAEs, and that he built up a covers collection of virtually all the postal agency cancellations from the 1930s to the late 1950s. He also described a classification scheme which formed a starting point for later authors.

Porter never published his planned book on Nigerian philately, though his notes have informed publications ranging from Robson Lowe's encyclopaedia entries (13) to Ince and Sacher. 'Porter covers' remain a major source of Nigerian cancellations on cover: there are (probably) over a thousand of them.

ii. 1950s to 1980s

From the 1950s onwards, a number of other collectors began serious study of Nigerian cancellations. Cecil Patterson, Bishop on the Niger, and later Archbishop of the Anglican Church of the Province of West Africa, built up a large collection of covers and cancellations through to the 1970s, as did Don van Reken, during and after his time as a missionary in Northern Nigeria.

Colin McCaig published studies of Travelling Post Offices in 1963 (14), Northern Nigerian history, stamps and cancels in 1970 (15), and 'Postal History and Handstamps of British West Africa' in 1978 (16). In 1975 Ince and Osborne published on the cancellations of pre-1914 Nigeria (17) followed, in 1981, by Ince's article in Stamp Collecting on Nigerian cancellations (18), and Ray Harris' article on Southern Nigeria postmarks (19). Nicholson's 3 booklets in the Cockerill series (20), published in 1981/82 include postmark information for pre-1914 territories, though his 1985 publication 'The Postal History of Nigeria 1900-1936' (21) has little to say about post 1914 cancels.

iii. The 1990s

In 1990 WASC published a seventy-page list of all the Nigerian offices and cancellations compiled by John Forrest (22), with earliest and later use dates. This was the first such comprehensive list, but it was quickly followed by three important publications which represented the state of knowledge at the time. These are the books by Ince and Sacher, Jones and Proud. Each draws on earlier published material as well as individual collections and on resources such as the GPO Archives.

These key publications use different approaches to the description of cancellations, and do not always agree. Earliest and last known use dates may also differ.

This book arose out of an attempt to reconcile and add to the very considerable amount of information in these three works. I have not attempted to go back to earlier sources - indeed it is often not clear where the material for individual illustrations or the data came from. Of the three, Ince and Sacher give the most complete account of sources. To have attributed sources to every item of information in the three books would have made their authors' already mighty task that much greater.

Ince and Sacher

Ince and Sacher (1) focus on the period up to the 1914 unification of Southern and Northern Nigeria. Their comprehensive and authoritative work considers all aspects of postal history from routes and postage rates through to stamps, varieties and post offices. Information about cancellations is but a part of the book, but the detail (for instance of letter code usages and manuscript cancels) is greater than one can find in other publications.

Jones

Jones (2) is more of a listing of offices and cancellations than a detailed work of postal history, but it is very comprehensive and covers the period 1914 to 1980. The first edition predates Proud, while the second edition came four years after Proud was published, and incorporates information from it. Cancellers are described as generic Jones Types, building on earlier publications, and the Jones Types are illustrated at the back of the publication. They form the basis of the section in this book which describes cancellation types based on Jones' scheme. With 265 pages devoted to listings of offices and their cancellations, Jones represents a vast amount of patient study.

Jones' estate kindly donated his notes to WASC, including information about new Jones Types, offices and usage dates discovered since the second edition was published. That information is included in this study.

Proud

Proud (3) covers the Nigerias up to the time of independence in 1960. The great strength of the book for the postmark collector is that it illustrates every cancel it describes, on more than 600 pages. The illustrations are, with the occasional exception, true to life, though in some cases it is impossible to distinguish between some of the different types shown.

Proud gives cancellation date ranges which include information from Jones (edition 1) and from Ince and Sacher. Proud also includes opening dates for the listed offices, either as given in the Nigerian Gazettes, or taken from earliest cancel usage dates. The book includes substantial though unstructured postal history information, and includes the cancellations of the British Cameroons.

References to Proud's sources of information and cancel illustrations is scanty. While some of the material on which the images were based came from Proud's own collection, he used material lent by other collectors, images from the Post Office Impression Books, and images from the 1949 Colonial Post Office census. The latter required post offices to submit an impression from all the cancellers in use at that time.

Although the current whereabouts of the Nigerian part of the census is not known, Proud used images from it. Where he shows several cancel images dated 1949 which cannot be distinguished, it is likely that these came from the census. They demonstrate one of the difficulties of distinguishing canceller types: strikes from two different instruments may be indistinguishable in practice.

b. Other sources of information

i. Cameo and other journals

Cameo, the journal of the West Africa Study Circle, has published many articles relating to Nigerian cancellations and post offices. Digital copies of older issues are publicly available from the WASC website (23) together with a cumulative index of articles and letters (24)

While articles on Nigerian stamps appear in other journals from time to time, little of note on Nigerian post offices and cancellations has been published other than by Cameo since the 1970s.

ii. Lists produced by the Nigerian Post Office (now NIPOST).

From time to time the Nigerian Post Office published lists of post offices. These give lists of main post offices, sub and branch post offices, and postal agencies. Some also give the name of each agency's controlling office which can help with location. The lists contain the occasional typo and duplication.

This book uses lists dating from 1919, 1949, 1963, 1966, 1973, and 1988. NIPOST (25) also published online lists of offices by state in about 2007. Those lists are no longer on the NIPOST website, but may be obtained elsewhere online (26).

iii. Post Office Annual Reports:

From well before 1914, with the exception of 1940 to 1943, the Nigerian Post Office published an Annual Report describing postal service operations: personnel, revenue, volume of mail, telegraph operations and so on.

Most such reports also give the number of offices in operation. Some of these reports are free to view on the WASC website (27), and others are available via British Online Archive (28), a subscription service.

iv. Nigerian Government Gazettes:

Gazettes have been published since before 1900 for the announcement of government information such as staff appointments, high court cases, decrees, applications to tender. Some include announcements of post office openings, with date, location, and controlling office. Up to 100 Gazettes were and are published each year.

The office opening dates in Proud came mostly from a painstaking trawl through Gazettes and at least two other collectors (Porter and Forrest) did the same for the pre-independence period. Michael Wright used Nigerian Gazettes to compile a list of offices and opening dates for the period 1960 to the end of 1974. The unpublished work of these three collectors is on file in the WASC archives.

Nigerian Gazettes are available free online (29), in an almost complete series from 1958 to 1983, while a more limited range may be found on the Nigerian Legal Information website (30). The author has gone through Gazettes from the start of 1975 noting names and opening dates. With the information from Michael Wright, this has provided estimates of the number of new offices opening each year from 1960 to 1980 (31). Links to more detailed information on the Nigerian Gazettes announcements can be found online (32).

v. The UPU:

Nigeria has been a member of the Universal Postal Union since 1929, and as such provides the UPU with statistics on the operation of its postal services. The UPU website (33) can be searched for Nigerian Post Office annual data from 1980 onwards, including the number of post offices open. Those UPU statistics are not entirely reliable, especially for recent years when many offices are believed to be no longer conducting business.

vi. Post Office Impression Books

As described in more detail in Section 5 below, cancellers came from several sources, none of which are well documented. Cancellers based on a rubber stamp were probably sourced locally, while those based on moveable type (notably the 'skeleton' cancellers) were probably assembled locally from parts brought from overseas firms.

However, a great many cancellers were obtained as ready-made instruments in brass or steel from the UK General Post Office, and it was the GPO's practice to take an impression of every canceller before it was sent, alongside the date of despatch.

The 'GPO Impression books' show impressions from Nigerian cancellers from the 1860s until around 1962, though as explained in Beale, Martin and Walton's book (34), the record has many gaps. Most, but by no means all, of the Nigerian cancellations shown in the Impression Books have been 'found' in use, and the Impression Book provides a date for the very earliest possible use (actual usage dates are sometimes several years after the 'despatch' date).

A significant number of cancellations are known only from the Impression Book image: it is not known whether examples exist but have not been seen by collectors, or whether the instrument was never actually used on 'live' mail.

vii. Cancellation collections

The main basis for information on usage and for illustrations has always been the collections assembled by collectors, and the authors mentioned earlier drew on their own comprehensive collections and on those of their contemporaries. Some of those collections have been broken up, but the material has been incorporated into modern collections, and resurfaces on the market from time to time

New material appears regularly, often from old generalist collections, and provides a steady stream of new information about cancellers, usage dates and offices, from pre-unification onwards. This book is a reflection of how much knowledge has grown over the thirty years since Ince and Sacher, Jones and Proud were published.

Some of the new information herein comes from my own collection and researches, and I am indebted to other members of WASC who have sent me information about their own discoveries.

Section 4. The Post Offices and Agencies

a. An overview

Post office names and opening dates provide a framework for collectors of Nigerian cancellations to document and arrange their collections. The discovery of a cancel from a previously unseen office, or which extends the known date range, provides extra interest to cancellation hunting.

In its general sense, 'post office' covers any official establishment conducting postal business. However, within the postal service, offices were arranged in a hierarchy which reflected size and lines of responsibility, from General Post Offices at the top, which supervised Post Offices, which in turn supervised Postal Agencies. Sub Post Offices and Branch Post Offices fitted somewhere below Post Offices and above the Agencies. For convenience, the term post office, uncapitalised, is used below to encompass all establishments, while Post Office is reserved for those officially designated as such.

From before 1900 it is clear that some offices supervised less important ones, and by 1908 the terms Post Office and Postal Agency are used in reports. However, nothing has been written to make clear just what the distinction was in terms of staffing, services and the like, either in the early days or later when the postal service encompassed hundreds of establishments.

Postal Agencies were also categorised, as Postal Agencies, Private Postal Agencies, Native Authority Postal Agencies, Railway Postal Agencies, and Cash Agencies. According to Rob May's researches[3], postal agents were not on the post office payroll but were paid commission with a guaranteed minimum which was lower for railway postal agents because they were on the payroll of Nigerian Railways. The distinctions between postal agency, private postal agency and native administration postal agency are still unclear, but probably relate to who sponsored the application to the Post Office for a licence to sell stamps and handle mails. So maybe the following applied.

- A 'Postal Agency' was sponsored by the Nigerian postal administration, which invited applications in order to extend postal services.
- A 'Private Postal Agency' was sponsored by commerce, eg Kingsway Stores (urban) or the village shop (rural).
- A 'Native Administration Postal Agency' was sponsored by native rulers, chiefs or local councillors as in the case of the Uyanga agency (35), and based in a Court or other local government building.

Depending on foundation and size, post offices took in and forwarded mail, offered registration and parcels services, sold stamps and postal orders, dealt with telegrams and provided Savings Bank Services.

[3] Rob May pers comm. Based on an article in preparation for publication in Cameo

The management, functioning and history of post offices provide a field of study in its own right which can add a deeper perspective to the study of cancellations. It is also a field where detailed information is scarce.

While post offices are an aspect of postal history, they also play a part in the general history and development of the areas they serve. Access to a post office opened up a world of communications and commerce, and hosting a post office was a major source of prestige. Articles in Cameo give a flavour of the process which an ambitious community had to go through in order to be granted a Postal Agency (35) (36). Behind most post offices are interesting backgrounds of establishment, personalities and local history, as well as the role each played within the postal services.

b. A brief history

i. Up to 1914

Ince and Sacher, from which the following brief summary is derived, describe the development of postal services in pre-1914 Nigeria. Prior to 1849 mail from Lagos was carried on an ad hoc basis by visiting ships. Thereafter the UK government awarded contracts for scheduled steamer mail delivery to West Africa, and by 1858 Lagos, had a 'packet agent' looking after mail. In 1861 Lagos became a British colony. It was given control of its own post office in 1863, and became independent of the GPO London in 1873. As the Colony's sphere of control expanded, postal services were gradually introduced to other areas, served either via canoe or mail launch along the lagoons, or by mail runner inland. By 1893 six further post offices had opened.

In 1886 Lagos was connected by submarine cable to London, and an internal telegraph system (by far the speediest method of communication) was extended inland. Telegraph offices en route became mail collection points prior to becoming post offices. By 1898 the telegraph line had been extended to Jebba on the Niger, providing a link to the territories which became Northern Nigeria in 1900.

The railway system also opened up communications as it extended from Lagos, reaching Ibadan in 1901, Jebba in 1909 and Minna in 1911, where it met a newly constructed line from Baro, a port on the river Niger. In 1912 the railway reached Kano, a further 250 miles north (37). Telegraph lines accompanied railway routes, and stations along the way provided locations for future Railway Postal Agencies.

East of Lagos Colony lay the delta of the Niger River, a major artery for commerce with the interior: cargo vessels could operate as far as Jebba for a few months, but the river was navigable to Lokoja most of the year, providing a major route for trade with the north. On the delta itself, ports at places such as Bonny and Old Calabar were well established by the mid nineteenth century, trading by then primarily in palm oil. In 1885 the British declared a Protectorate over the coastal areas of the delta and its hinterland, forming the Oil Rivers Protectorate, then the Niger Coast Protectorate before amalgamation into Southern Nigeria in 1900.

Postal services were rather unstructured at first, using consular offices and British stamps, but in 1893 overprinted stamps and suitable cancellers heralded the start of a proper postal service in the delta.

Inland, independent British traders operated under a variety of arrangements. Ambiguities in their relationship with the Protectorate caused frictions which eventually resolved when the Royal Niger Company Charter was revoked (at a cost to the British Government of £856,895). In 1900 its 'territories' became part of the new Protectorates of Northern and Southern Nigeria. The postal services operated by the Company at various up-river locations were incorporated into those of the new Protectorates.

From 1900 the development of postal services in Lagos Colony and Southern and Northern Nigeria continued steadily, with new offices opening as communication routes developed. Lagos merged with Southern Nigeria in 1906, and in 1914 the new nation of Nigeria was formed. The boundaries of Nigeria have fluctuated a little since, especially in relation to Cameroons in the East.

ii. 1914 to 1980

When Northern and Southern Nigeria merged in 1914 there were approximately 92 post offices open in the whole of Nigeria. As mentioned further on, it is difficult to give an exact number since the opening of new offices was not always promptly announced, and the closing of offices seldom mentioned – about 45 offices had opened but were closed by 1914 (38).

As described in more detail in the author's Cameo article (31), the number of offices opened each year can be worked out for the 1914 to 1960 period using the opening dates from Proud, augmented by the extra dates from Porter's notes. Research in Nigerian Gazettes by Michael Wright (39) and the author provide opening dates between 1960 and 1980.

The results show considerable year-on-year variation. Growth was slow up to 1930 and during the depression years of the 1930s the number of offices actually fell: in 1935 there were 152 offices open, 3 fewer than in 1929. As the economy recovered thereafter, the pace of new openings increased, only to be held back again by the second world war and the following period of austerity. Post Office Annual reports of that period comment on the impact that lack of investment was having on services, especially upon the much-needed expansion of the telephone system.

Up to 1935, most new offices were opened as Sub Post Offices or even full Head Post Offices: new Postal Agencies were in the minority. Thereafter most new offices opened were Postal Agencies. In 1939-40 out of a total of 161 Postal Agencies, 50 were classified as Railway Postal Agencies, emphasising how important railways were in carrying mail and goods, and as routes for telegraph and telephone wires.

In the 1950s, as self-government led towards independence, investment improved and over 100 new offices a year opened. In 1960 there were 1,281 offices open according to that year's Post Office Report.

The late 1960s were affected by civil war, but growth continued and the Post Office listing of 1973 contains 1,677 names. From the late 1970s the number of new offices surged, driven by oil money, urban growth and political re-organisation which created local government areas, each wanting its own post office. In 1980 the UPU data shows 2,438 offices.

iii. 1980 onwards

The Post and Telecommunications Department was rebranded as NIPOST in 1985 (25). UPU data (33) shows the number of post offices continuing to rise every year. The 1988 NIPOST list shows 3,447 offices, which is very similar to the UPU figure for that year. The annual UPU statistics from the early 2000s show a peak of over 4,000 offices, but thereafter numbers started to fall. The 2007 NIPOST list shows 3,257 offices but, anecdotally, many of those did little business as NIPOST's reputation for reliability declined and the use of couriers and electronic alternatives to the post became increasingly popular.

c. 'Unseen' offices

Post Office reports and Gazette announcements provide a reasonable list of office openings up to 1980. Comparing it to a list of all the offices for which collectors have reported cancellations shows that there are approximately 700 'unseen' offices for which no cancel has been reported. This figure is almost certainly an underestimate since it does not take into account offices which were not announced in the Gazette.

From 1981 onwards the list of 'unseen' offices grows steadily longer: cancels have not been reported for (very) approximately half of the 3,257 post offices named in the 2007 NIPOST list.

While there are a great many post offices for which no cancellation has yet been seen, it is a welcome confirmation that there is a great deal more for collectors to find.

d. Dates of operation

Although it is possible that an office commenced business before the date given therein, the Gazette announcement of an office's opening provides the official earliest date for the use of the office's canceller(s). There are a significant number of offices which permanently closed, but re-opened years later, with another Gazette announcement. Just to complicate matters, office closures were usually not announced, so the fact that an announcement is actually a re-opening may not be apparent. Proud gives opening dates for offices (shown in brackets if estimated) and, for some, gives a series of opening and closing dates. Porter's notes add opening dates gleaned from his correspondence with post office officials.

Some of the Post Office Annual Reports state how many offices temporarily closed during that year. For instance, the 1952-3 report mentions that, out of a total of 516 agencies, 37 were temporarily closed at various times. Edet Akpan's article (40) on the Oban office gives a flavour of the reasons why an office might shut down for a while.

Thus, one cannot assume that once an office has opened it will have been in operation continuously thereafter.

The Cancels-by-Office List shows many offices where there are gaps of time when no canceller appears to have been in use. While that may show that the office concerned temporarily closed, it is more likely that cancellers were in use during the 'missing' time but have not yet been reported.

e. The challenge of office names

Even before 1914, spelling variants (eg Saki / Shaki) and name change (for example Sombreiro River to Degema, Qua Iboe River to Eket) complicated the task of working out which post offices were open, and where a particular office was located. Variation in spelling arose particularly when using the English alphabet to write down names in languages which have a 'tonal' element, such as Igbo and Yoruba.

Over time initial misspellings and mis-heard names have been corrected, or alternatives adopted, which can make it difficult to match place names written down at different periods (as an examination of old maps makes very evident). Usoro, Uzoro, and Ozoro are alternative spellings for the same office, and other examples include Dutchinwai / Duchinwai / Dutsen Wai, Oturkpo / Otukpo, and Usonigbe / Urhonigbe.

Official documents often did not use the modified alphabets designed specifically to cope with tonal languages. For example: Ṣomolu was usually written as Shomolu, and both spellings appear on cancellations from that office.

Major changes of name (eg Odo Oke Igbira became Aiyedun Ekiti); typos (eg Zana or Zapia for Zaria), and short- / long- form names (Ife / Ile-Ife, Ondo / Ode-Ondo), as well as variants caused by damage to skeleton cancellers all add to the challenge of keeping track of offices.

The most significant complication arose in the late 1950s when it became common for cancellers used at smaller offices to include the name of the office followed by the name of the main office responsible for its oversight. Thus Okemessi, which was supervised from Ilesha, cancelled stamps with 'Okemessi Ilesha' from 1960 on. For some offices, the overseeing office changed several times and new cancellers were issued to reflect this. For example, Uneah used Uneah Ubiaja then Uneah Uromi as the controlling office changed. All three names apply to the same post office. Of course, many 'double barrelled' names had different origins and often reflected the name of the ethnic sub-group to which that community belongs (for example the many place names ending in Ekiti).

Locating a particular office, while often straightforward, can run into other difficulties apart from those caused by spelling and outright name change. One is common to any large country: if there several places with the same name as the office in question, in which was it actually located? For example, Proud mentions a Postal Agency at Agba 'in Benin District', but there are 19 places called Agba in an online gazetteer (41), and none is in Edo State (where Benin City now is). Fortunately Gazette announcements generally provide the name of a new office's Local Government Area and controlling office which will usually serve to locate it, providing one takes into account changes in the state and local government areas and names over the years.

A final pitfall is that some post offices are named after a community which may consist of several settlements, none of which may actually bear the name of the office. A Google search may show this.

Section 5. The cancellers: making sense of variety

a. An overview

This section focuses on the instruments used to cancel stamps – the cancellers.

With the possible exception of those used under the aegis of the Royal Niger Company, cancellers also had official status, and although we do not have details of the Nigerian post office rules governing them, regulations from countries such as South Africa required cancellers to be secured under lock and key, and a daily record kept of their issue. They remained the property of the General Post Office, and the loss of a canceller was a serious matter. Material bearing the imprint of the canceller could be deemed to have been accepted by the post office – a sign that a fee had been paid for a service to be done.

Cancellers superseded by new instruments occasionally came back into use many years later, showing that they were kept rather than discarded. The 'killer' cancels from the pre-1900 Lagos era found sporadic use up to at least 1960 for cancelling loose mail at Lagos and at Ibadan.

Up to the early 1960s most cancellers were ordered via the Crown Agents from the London GPO, but we do not know which firm (or most likely, firms) made the devices. Nor do we know the internal post office processes which determined when new cancellers were to be ordered, and what the design should be. That means that systems for classifying cancellations reflect the observed diversity of cancels, rather than known common origins of the cancellers.

Cancellers were stout implements, built to withstand many years of hard usage, which often saw them wielded with enough force to cut into the stamp being cancelled. Although some early cancellers used brass, and most parcel cancellers were made of rubber, the majority were made of a steel die which, if examined face-on, would show the reverse of the cancel it was designed to produce. Despite their hard usage, steel die cancellers could be long lived. The record is probably held by a parcel canceller in use at Burutu from 1910 until at least 1960.

Most steel die cancellers were made with central slots into which individual pieces of type could be inserted to show the date, and often the time of day. Time and date 'slugs' of moveable type were to be changed as necessary, though that was not always promptly done, especially at the start of January, when clerks would occasionally forget to change the year slug.

The text round the edge usually contained the office name together with other text specific to the canceller type, such as 'NIGERIA', or the identification number of the office, and / or the purpose of the cancel: 'REGISTERED' for instance.

In most cancellers this information was a permanent part of the die, but instruments were also made into which loose type could be inserted to make up the office name. One type, commonly used in Northern Nigeria, allowed the type to move around the peripheral slot, unless securely tightened down. More commonly used were the 'skeleton' type of canceller, which had 26 slots round the edge into which individual letters could be placed. Further details of these may be found in 'Skeletons in Nigeria' (42) from which the information in the next paragraph is taken.

The first skeleton cancellers came into use in Nigeria in 1915 (Aba Proud type D3) and skeleton cancels may still be found on stamps after 2000. The big advantage of the skeleton canceller was that it could be assembled locally and taken apart for re-issue to a new office so long as a supply of type was available. Whereas most other countries used skeleton cancellers as a stop-gap, in Nigeria over 1500 skeleton cancels are known and some were in use for over a decade. Incompletely tightened or assembled 'loose type' cancellers gave rise to a whole range of minor (and occasionally major) variations in cancels from some offices.

This may seem rather careless, but it is likely that cancellers were taken apart to be cleaned from time to time and, because what one sees looking face-on to a canceller is a mirror image of the cancel, it is less easy to reassemble correctly every time.

Rubber cancellers, used mainly on parcels, were made locally, but unless special ink was used the rubber deteriorated, so they had a shorter life. The relatively rapid turn-over of instruments led to variety in observed cancels. For example, Proud records eight different rubber parcel cancels for Jos, and new ones have been found since. In general, the variety of rubber parcel cancels has been under-reported. Some cancellers on the same general pattern as the rubber ones were actually steel and were used mainly to show registration.

b. A short history of the canceller types

All the cancel types mentioned here are described or illustrated fully in the later sections of this work.

i. Lagos

The impression books show that a canceller (type IS-L 2) was sent to Lagos in 1859, and Ince and Sacher's first recorded use of it is in February 1860. Other canceller designs were issued over the next four decades. Apart from types IS-L 1, IS-L 3, and the barred oval 'killer' obliterating cancellers, instruments were single circles, between 19 and 23mm in diameter, and generally contained a letter code as well as the date.

From 1877 to about 1898, 'killers' were usually applied to the stamps themselves, while the dated canceller was applied elsewhere as a handstamp. The 'killer' ensured that stamps could not be re-used, while the handstamp showed where the mail came from and when it was posted.

In 1904 a larger handstamp, 26 to 28mm in diameter, was introduced to Lagos and its subsidiary post offices, with code letters from A to F (or none).

ii. Royal Niger Company Territories

Rubber handstamps, either oval or in a variety of rectangular formats, came into use in 1888 and continued until shortly after 1900. Ince and Sacher give a full account of these cancels, some of which are extremely scarce.

iii. Northern Nigeria

When the new administration took over in January 1900, it continued to use the Royal Niger Company Lokoja oval until the first steel die (type IS-N 1A) arrived in 1901. This simply contained 'NORTHERN NIGERIA' around a two-line date.

From 1903 double ring cancellers with the office name followed by NORTHERN NIGERIA were distributed (type IS-N 2). In the interim many offices relied on manuscript cancellations written across the stamps. Such mail travelled to Lokoja where a Lokoja postmark was usually added.

Some offices were issued with other double-ring cancellers where type was loosely held (type IS-N 3), giving rise to variations: Proud shows 10 variations for such cancels from Offa.

iv. Oil Rivers and Niger Coast

The first cancellers used, from 1892 to 1894, were double oval rubber cancellers, but these were rapidly superseded by steel die instruments: single circles; oval Registered cancels; and square cancellers. Most incorporated a code letter, and many were used with different coloured inks – black, red, blue and violet. High collector interest may have been responsible for some of this variety: philatelic and cancelled-to-order material is common.

v. Southern Nigeria

Niger Coast cancellers and Lagos cancellers continued in use, together with new steel die types, some with and some without code letters. The first Travelling Post Office cancellers appear, used on the Niger River and on the new railway from Lagos northwards to Ibadan and then Jebba.

vi. Nigeria

Initially Nigeria continued to use cancellers from its earlier constituent administrations, in some cases well into the 1920s. New canceller types were introduced: skeletons, double circles with sidebars, and large double circles with side dots for example. New types were usually introduced first in Lagos and other major offices and gradually rolled out to other offices as required, sometimes replacing older cancellers but often used alongside. Cancellers from the 1930s were still in use in many offices at the end of the 1950s.

Small offices were generally issued with a 'temporary' skeleton canceller when they opened, and made do with it until a new generation of cancellers was introduced, with the 'office name – controlling office' format. The failure rate of new postal agents and even Postal Agencies was significant. Skeleton cancellers could also be modified: it is thought that the change from type J15, with NIGERIA at the foot, to type J46 (no NIGERIA) was effected locally by simply removing letters from the canceller.

Larger offices had several service counters, and cancellers from the start of the 1960s often give a counter number after the office name. Some Lagos canceller counter numbers run to over 30. Cancels may also show the Post Office Identification number, by which the office was identified for administrative purposes. A list of such numbers was first published in 1986 by Don van Reken (43). An updated version is available for download here (44).

In addition to general post cancellers, cancellers which show registration, and cancellers used on parcels, it was not uncommon for the handstamps used in the Savings Bank and Telegraph sections to be used to cancel normal mail or to show registration, often for brief periods but sometimes for months at a time. As required by UPU rules, general and registration cancellers were also used at key transit offices as registered mail passed through, and specific transit and express cancels were introduced at key offices such as the Lagos GPO.

Up to about 1998 new cancellers were not significantly different in design from those shown in Jones' Type illustrations, but thereafter a number of new designs come into service, and those are illustrated in the second part of the Type Description List later in this work. Many offices continued to use the older designs.

c. Code letters, time slugs, asterisks, and date layouts

Many pre-1914 cancels of Lagos, Oil Rivers, Niger Coast and Southern Nigeria usually included a code letter above the date. A, B or C were the most usual letters used, though the range went up to F in some canceller types. Code letters were either a permanent part of the canceller, or occupied a slot which allowed the letter to be changed, as with the slots for the date slugs. The meaning of the code letters is discussed by Redhead and Vikhamar (45), who concluded that in the A-F system the code letter showed the time of day that the canceller had been used, but where only A or B was used the code letter may have indicated the clerk or the counter. By 1914 the use of code letters was disappearing.

The time of day began appearing in cancels in 1904, on type IS-L 12, thought to have been used primarily in the Lagos Telegraph office. The first cancellers with side bars, introduced in about 1922, commonly showed time above the two-line date. The same cancels are often seen without time, and over the next 50 years there is no obvious pattern to when the time is shown on a cancel and when it is omitted. Cancellers showing time were used well into the 1980s.

When in use the time could be changed half-hourly in busy offices such as the Lagos GPO. Skeleton cancels and most of the smaller steel die cancellers are not known showing time.

Whether an asterisk or star appears in a cancel is similarly variable, and Jones mentions confirmation by the Lagos authorities that 'the star which appears in some cancellations has no particular significance except that it is formed by loose type which can be substituted by a code letter or number as may be necessary to distinguish different date stamps which give the same impression'. The 'asterisk' canceller slot may alternatively be occupied by '19' (showing the century), or a number. In general, an empty slot in a canceller simply does not show in the resulting cancel, and the number of slots provided in the central area of a canceller is therefore not always clear, making it difficult to decide whether two cancels which differ in the positioning of date slugs come from different instruments, or were made by the same canceller with different central slots in use.

d. Classifying cancels

i. Principles

There are two approaches to describing the range of Nigerian cancellations. One, adopted by Proud, is to number and illustrate every different cancel found. His illustrations are organised by office but he makes no attempt to reflect any underlying similarities between cancellers from different places. Useful though it is to have all those drawings, Proud does not offer a classification as such. The second and ultimately more meaningful approach is to devise a classification scheme into which known cancels fit, and into which new-found cancels can be placed.

Classification is an important aspect of making sense of any diverse set of observations, whether those originate in nature or by the works of man. Ideally, a classification reflects some underlying process which has caused the observed differences and which enables them to be placed into meaningful groups. Biological classification reflects underlying evolutionary processes for example.

In the case of Nigerian cancellations, an ideal system would be based upon a knowledge of how and when the postal authorities decided to issue particular cancellers, who they were ordered from and so on. That would enable us to group observed cancels meaningfully. However, we do not have the detailed records required, so instead inference and instinct must serve to decide upon a 'workable' scheme.

'Workable' in this context means a scheme which is easy to apply, and which strikes a good balance between 'lumping together' and 'splitting apart'. Early schemes tended to lump together cancellations which were fairly similar, such as all the cancels with side-bars, all the skeleton cancels, and so on. Later classification schemes split old categories into newer more specific ones: for example, separating side-bar cancels with a two-figure year dates from ones with four-figure year dates, and side-bar cancels 26mm in diameter from 30mm diameter ones.

Each decision, to split or not to split, involves judgements of 'significance' which are potentially open to question, especially if the criteria for the separation are imprecise or difficult to apply. Each new variation or perceived variation on existing cancel types is an invitation to create a new category, which can lead to an unworkable multiplicity of cancellation types.

'Easy to apply' is also a subjective idea, but focuses on whether the descriptions of the classification categories are clear, and whether they give criteria which are straightforward to use when faced with an example to classify.

ii. Jones' classification scheme

Jones 'catalogue' (as he describes it) of cancels was based on a classification of his own devising which was based on earlier, distinctly 'lumpy', schemes. Jones describes over 200 cancel 'types' (by the time one includes registered cancels, parcel cancels and the like). It was a major undertaking, and while not perfect, Jones' schema has served well in subsequent years.

There are instances where one might criticise the lumping together of cancels of a possibly different nature, and others where Jones declares two types where it could be argued there is really only one, but these are minor quibbles. Difficulties using the Jones schema arise mainly from the lack of any description of each type, other than a drawing of a cancellation which serves as the 'Type image'. The image chosen may or may not serve well to illustrate the specific nature of the Type, and may or may not enable the user differentiate it clearly from similar Types.

In putting together this work, it was decided to leave Jones' scheme unchanged, apart from redrawing a few of the illustrations, but to supplement it by adding a brief written description to each Type explaining its distinctive characteristics, variations within the Type, and how it differs from other Jones Types.

iii. Proud's scheme

Proud did not use an over-arching classification or type system. For each office he gives every cancellation drawing an index number, arranged sequentially, starting with 1, prefixed by a letter indicating whether the cancel is used on general post (letter D), Registration (letter R), or other purpose. However, cancellation D1 from one office may well look quite different to D1 from another – there is no underlying similarity of appearance. Gaps in his numbering sequence have no clear significance.

iv. Pre-1914 – the Ince and Sacher Types

Jones included pre-1914 cancellers which continued in use thereafter, but did not include those which went out of use before 1914. Those are comprehensively covered in Ince and Sacher, under their own type scheme, with drawings and in most cases, a description within the relevant section of the book.

e. Reconciling Jones Types and Proud numbers

In the Cancels-by-Office List which starts on p182, entries give Jones Types, Proud index numbers and (in Part 10 which deals with pre-1914 cancels) the Ince and Sacher Types. This has required identifying the correspondences between different systems, particularly those between Proud and the classification systems used by Jones and by Ince and Sacher. Doing so for most cancels has been straightforward, but in some cases it has been decidedly awkward.

Because Proud took usage dates from Jones (edition 1), then Jones (edition 2) took dates from Proud, I have presumed that where date ranges coincide, the Proud numbers and Jones Types also match. Where this does not help, I have used any examples I have seen, together with characteristics such as cancel size, to work out a correspondence. The comments field in the Cancels-by-Office List mentions individual cancel uncertainties.

Difficulties arise particularly in cases where Proud gives several images which cannot easily or reliably be distinguished. Sometimes a subtle distinction becomes clear on examination, in other cases, even using Photoshop to superimpose cancels fails to detect a difference.

I have taken the pragmatic view that if one cannot tell the difference 'in the field' it has little practical use. This approach almost certainly underestimates the number of cancellers in use. As the 1949 canceller census images show, larger offices in 1949 often had several cancellers in use, at different counters, which simply cannot be distinguished by the cancellations they produced.

In other cases, the examination of many examples of a particular cancel shows small differences which are not consistent enough to rely upon as a distinction but which strongly suggest more than one canceller. This is mentioned in the lists where it is evident.

Because some of the Jones Types are quite broadly defined, it is occasionally necessary to tie in more than one distinct Proud example to a single Jones Type. Hopefully the notes in the detailed lists make clear when this is the case.

Finally, Proud illustrates numerous variants (numbered for example as D1 State 1, D1 State 2 etc - there are 10 states for Offa D1), which are essentially the same cancel but which show idiosyncrasies of spelling or spacing. The cancellations concerned are almost always skeleton cancels. Jones usually ignores such varieties but I have retained them, believing that, although of questionable historical importance, they add considerably to the fun of collecting.

Where the given usage date ranges don't agree I have generally chosen the wider range unless something seems odd (for example a probable transcription error). Where there is a big discrepancy between dates, it is mentioned in the comments field of the detailed lists.

The same considerations apply when reconciling Proud numbers with Ince and Sacher Types. Jones Types and Ince and Sacher Types generally reconcile easily.

f. A practical approach to identification and dating

In an ideal world one would be dealing with entire, cleanly-struck cancels. In practice the cancel may be partial, faint, smudged, or missing (for example) the year part of its date slug.

Even with a good ‘strike’ it is not always easy to ‘type’ a cancel, particularly if the cancel isn't quite the same as any of the Jones Types described, or resembles more than one type. One of the purposes of this book is to provide extra identification information to supplement the images of Jones Types, and to make the distinctive features clearer. In many cases the Cancels-by-Office List also provides extra information about individual offices’ cancels.

It is of course better not to ascribe a type or an office name unless one is sure, though the temptation to do so can be considerable.

Problems can include.

- Part of the cancel is missing.
- The office name is incomplete.
- The cancel is smudged, or parts of it are indistinct.
- The dimensions of the cancel are uncertain.
- The date is incomplete.

- The cancel seems to match several Jones Types.
- The cancel doesn't look like any of the published Types.

i. Part of the cancel is missing

The size of a cancellation relative to the stamp means that most cancels on loose stamps will be incomplete. Often this does not affect type identification, but sometimes it will make it impossible, even if the office name is clear. Quite a few of the types can only be distinguished by the foot of the cancel: "does it show 'NIGERIA', or nothing?"; "is there a number at the foot or nothing?". If the foot is missing the type can't be unequivocally settled unless there are other visible differences, which the images in Proud or in the list descriptions may help with.

ii. The office name is incomplete

If only part of the office name can be seen it may be possible to identify it by using 'search' on the main Post Office list. As an example, faced with '..SSA IG..', identification of the issuing office looks like a lost cause. Search using 'SSA IG' shows the cancel to be from AGBASSA IGBADU. At the end of Proud there is a 'reverse index' in which offices are arranged according to the last letter of the name – useful if the first few letters of the name are unclear.

An Office Identification Number occurs on some cancels and can pin-point the office even if name details are missing.

iii. The cancel is smudged, or parts are indistinct

Causes include the following.

- Cancellers become worn.
- The canceller may not have been cleaned to remove dried ink.
- The cancel may have smudged while drying (especially true on shiny surfaced stamps or if the canceller has been over-inked).
- The canceller was not applied squarely.

An under-inked canceller can produce a cancel where little can be seen apart from the indentations left on the stamp.

Technology often helps.

- Inexpensive modern digital microscopes have decent magnification and resolution.
- Lighting the stamp from the side may show indentations where the ink itself is too faint.
- Scanning at 400dpi provides another way of magnifying an image, and software can then be used to sharpen the image.
- Software such as Photoshop can be used on a scanned image to remove stamp colours and thus enhance the image of the cancel.

iv. The dimensions of the cancel are uncertain

Before considering ways to estimate dimensions, it is worth noting the following.

- How a cancel is struck, and how worn the canceller is, can affect the size of a cancellation. This is particularly true for registered oval cancels, where long-usage can push the rim inwards almost onto the lettering.
- For consistency, make measurements from the centre of the cancel boundary line rather than the inner or outer edge.
- Round cancels may not be perfectly round, and oval cancellers may well not be true ellipses.
- Published images may not be the true size of the cancellation.

For all these reasons, several measurements are better than one, and differences of less than 1mm are not to be relied on. However, there are cancels which may be distinguished only in their dimensions, and it is useful to have effective ways of measuring small distances when a ruler will not suffice.

The best approach is to scan at 400 dpi and use suitable software. For instance, Photoshop allows one to draw a rectangle over the cancel and read off exact dimensions. If the cancel is circular, one can draw and superimpose a circle of known diameter which coincides with the visible parts of the cancel edge, even if a significant part of the cancel circumference is missing. Ray Harris has produced an accurate set of circles of diameters from 15.5mm to 30mm as a 400dpi .png (transparent) image available online[4].

Careful super-imposition of registered cancellation images often shows that, while rim widths can vary by up to 2mm, the positions of the letters are indistinguishable. The simplest explanation is that the cancels come from the same canceller showing different degrees of wear.

v. The date is incomplete or puzzling

Knowing the date can help with cancel identification, but is also useful for checking against the known usage range. Finding a cancellation which extends the known range is one of the most satisfying aspects of collecting them.

From the 1960s onwards it is frustratingly common to find that Nigerian cancellations are missing the year slug. Of course, cancels on a cover may include other strikes which show the year, but usually one is not so lucky. Sometimes a 'job lot' of stamps were clearly all assembled from the same year – not conclusive but probably sufficient evidence to assign that year to a cancel.

Otherwise, the only help comes from the date of issue of the cancelled stamp. At least that may set an earliest limit to the cancel date, though relying on the stamp issue date for a last known usage is unsafe: stamps often continued in use on letters for several years after newer issues were introduced.

It must be assumed that the date shown on a cancel is true unless there is evidence to suggest that it is not. It is not uncommon for the year slug in a cancel to be left unchanged a few days into January of the following year. More major (but very unusual) errors can include transposing parts of the date slug, to show 1965 instead of 1956 for instance. A cancellation which is earlier than the date of issue of the stamp often indicates that it has been 'cancelled to order'.

Another source of puzzlement can arise when a stamp has been 're-used' to defraud the post office: it may show traces of the original cancel, including date, as well as the more recent cancellation.

Finally, if a cancel date is significantly outside the currently published usage dates, it suggests that an old canceller has resumed service, to cover for the misplacement or loss of another instrument.

vi. The cancel seems to match several Jones Types

The first place to start is the Cancels-by-Office List entry for the office from which the cancellation comes. It is most likely that the cancel belongs to one of the Jones Types mentioned there. The Type Description List shows what each cancel looks like, and also explains aspects which distinguish that type from other similar types. The individual cancellation images shown in Proud, though not always accurate, can provide a helpful means of comparison.

However, as may be seen from the Cancels-by-Office List, there are cases where cancels are really difficult to 'type', either because there are several very similar cancel types recorded or because the Type definition itself is not sufficiently clear. For example, the smaller 'side bar' cancels of the 1920s to 1950s can be difficult. Part of the problem is that cancels may be not be uniform over time, as wear blurs the sharp edges on the canceller. Another is that several cancellers of the same design may be in use in a busy office, and be practically impossible to distinguish.

[4] Ray Harris' transparency is available at http://www.nigerian-post-offices.org.uk/methods.html#measure

One of the purposes of the comments field in the Cancels-by-Office List is to explain where these difficulties are known. It can require careful study of a lot of examples to resolve such uncertainties.

vii. The cancel does not look like any of the published Types

If there are real differences between the features of a cancellation and the images in the Types Description List, and the Cancels-by-Office List does not help, please send a scan to the author – you may have an unrecorded cancel type. Do bear the following in mind though.

- A cancel 30mm in diameter with text around the edges is likely to be a 'skeleton' type. If so, assess whether it is a variation on an existing type caused by inaccurate re-assembly of the canceller. This is quite common, and reported variants for each office are given in the Cancels-by-Office List.
- Missing letters in a cancellation are also common variants in skeleton cancels, caused either by the letter having been misplaced, or having fallen below the level of the others, so failing to take ink. Missing letters are much less common with steel die cancellers.
- Cancellations sometimes show artefacts when parts of the canceller which do not normally print show ink following a heavy strike. This can be the outer rim of the canceller itself, or faint rectangles left by the unfilled 'slots' in a skeleton canceller. Occasionally phantom 'sidebars' can show in cancels which don't normally have them, but their irregular and faint appearance usually shows their true nature. However, there are cancellers from offices which were part of Biafra from which the word NIGERIA has been removed, usually incompletely, leaving a blur or irregular shape. Some of those continued in use for years after the war ended.
- Rubber parcel cancellers tended to perish, especially when used with the wrong ink. The result may convert the vertical lines from straight to wavy.
- Postage stamps were also used on commercial and official receipts, then 'cancelled' in manuscript or with a commercial cachet. The latter may look very similar to a postal cancellation.

Section 8. The Lists

The remainder of this book consists of three lists:

- The Post Offices List;
- The Type Descriptions List;
- The Cancels-by-Office List.

a. The Post Offices List

The Post Offices List includes the names of all the Nigerian post offices known to have been open up to the end of 1980 (including those from which no cancel has yet been reported), and all offices after 1980 for which a cancellation is known. The NIPOST lists for 1988 and 2007 mentioned in Section 3b can help with the 1,500 or so post-1980 offices for which information is not given in the Post Offices List.

Opening dates (known or 'open by' dates), location and other details are given for each office.

The first page of the list describes its scope, sources of information and so on. Internet searches and online maps have proved invaluable in tracking down the locations of new offices given in the list.

b. The Type Descriptions List

This List starts on page 125.

The Type Description List describes all the cancellation types known to the author. The three parts of the list reflect the origins of the type descriptions - Jones Types, New Jones Types, and Ince and Sacher Types.

The first part deals with all the Jones Types described in the Second Edition of Jones. Images are used with kind permission from WASC. In cases where the Jones Type image is incomplete or unclear, new images have been made, either from a better strike of the same cancel or from another one of the same type. Each Jones Type is accompanied by a description to aid identification.

The second part describes New Jones Types: post 1914 cancel types which are not shown in Jones Second Edition. Eleven of these come from notes made by Jones after 1999, the rest have been reported by other collectors. Each has been assigned a Jones Type number to maintain continuity.

Over the past 20 years or so, larger offices have tended to use designated cancellers to denote a wider range of functions: surface mail, air mail, registration, express mail and so on, and have done so by using the standard canceller type with different wordings. Rather than declare separate types for each, the new Jones Types use an additional letter to show variants on a type: J132A and J132B are thus cancels from the same office, both with the typical J132 layout but each with different wording.

The third part deals with Ince and Sacher Types: cancels used and discontinued before 1914. It is based upon the Ince and Sacher numbering scheme, with the minor addition of a letter to show which territory the canceller was used in (Ince and Sacher started at Type 1 for each territory). Cancels are either illustrated or described without image. Where appropriate updated information has been added to the descriptions.

While the Type Description List should enable collectors to identify Nigerian cancels without having to refer to other books, most will want to own copies of at least Ince and Sacher and of Proud, for both books contain a great deal of information in addition to their sections on cancellations. Proud's images can provide an invaluable aid to identification.

c. The Cancels-by-Office List

The Cancels-by-Office List is arranged alphabetically by office, and is, for historical reasons, divided into ten parts. Since 2012 I have maintained an online record of cancels by office, and file size considerations necessitated the division into parts at that time. This book supersedes that resource, though I hope to publish electronic updates from time to time via the WASC website.

The first nine parts cover all offices open from 1914 onwards. The tenth covers all offices which opened before 31 December 1913. A popular period for specialisation, the pre-1914 cancellations needed a modified layout to accommodate date codes and coloured inks. Offices which span both time periods are thus covered in two parts: part 10 for cancels introduced before 1.1.14 and one of the other parts for cancels introduced from 1.1.14 onwards.

Entries are arranged by office and include the following.

- The Office Identification Number (where known)
- If described in Proud, the index number he assigned, or the index numbers in the cases where it is not possible to distinguish reliably between the images shown.
- The Jones Type or Types.
- Notes about the cancellation, which might cover:
    a. additional aspects of identification;
    b. the relationship between Proud index number and Jones Type for that cancel;
    c. notes to help distinguish between variants on a particular Type;
    d. for those cancels which show them, the post office counter numbers which have been reported.
- Earliest known use date for the cancel (in italics if the date is an estimate).
- Latest known use date (in italics if the date is an estimate).

Dates are written as they appear in the cancel.

Section 8 a: The Post Offices List.

Alphabetical list of Nigerian post offices to 1980 and beyond

This list includes all the post office names mentioned in Proud (abbreviated as P) and in Jones edition 2 (J). It also includes:

1. Additional offices seen by the author, Paul Redhead
2. Additional offices reported by other collectors or mentioned in the notes notes made by Neville Jones after Jones edition 2 was published.
3. Additional offices for which cancels have not been reported, but which are mentioned in lists supplied by the Nigerian postal authorities giving the names of offices extant in 1949, 1963, 1973. Also mentioned is an '88 list'. This was published by NIPOST in 1988 and is helpful in placing post 1980 offices. The 'NIPOST list' itself dates from c. 2007, taken from the NIPOST website.

Three columns under Notes refer to three lists mentioned in 3 above, which give the names of Post Offices, Branch Offices, Sub Offices and agencies (PO, BO, SO, PA) extant in that year. For PA, SO, the main Post Town is given in Notes, as 'Under X' unless given in other name for office.

The Open Column gives an opening date if known. Dates in () or prefaced with 'By' are generally taken from dates of known cancels. Pre-independence dates are taken mostly from Proud, with additions from notes made by Herbert Porter. Post-independence opening dates are thanks to Michael Wright's researches in the Nigerian Gazettes between 1960 and 1975 and the author's review of Gazettes 1975 - 1980. Offices open after 1980 are included if a cancellation from the office has been reported.

1. Name variants / alternative spellings: Included either as LH column name or in the Notes column, are all the name variants shown / seen on cancels. In some cases there are several. (?) after an office name indicates some doubt that an office existed with a name spelt exactly that way.
2. Typos: Where it is clear that a name from a source is actually a typo that is mentioned. However, there are bound to be 'offices' in this list which are a mis-spelt but undetected name for another office.
3. Use of ↑: An ↑ in the Notes column signifies that this is the same office as one a line or two above it in the list. 'Same office' may reflect name change, spelling variant, typo or, most often, the inclusion of the controlling post office in the name of a postal agency. Controlling office change (eg Uromi for Ubiaja) may be shown in a new canceller for the office.
4. Inclusion of offices which became part of Cameroon Republic. This list follows Jones in not including offices which became Cameroon Republic in 1961, even if they earlier issued stamps which give 'Nigeria' as country. These are: Victoria, Bafut, Bakebe, Bali, Bamenda, Buea, Kumba, Ossidinge / Mamfe, Manyemen, Mbengwi, Mbonge, Muea, Muyuka, Ndian, Ndop, Ndu, Nkambe, Nsaw, Nyasoso, Santa, Tiko, Tinto, Tombel, Wum. Oddly several of these are included in the 1963 post offices list (Manyemen, Ndian, Nkambe),
5. Colour coding of names: Red shows an office for which a cancel has been seen dated 30 September 1960 or earlier (ie pre-independence). Green shows first recorded use 1 October 1960 up to the end of 1980 (ie the latest date covered in Jones). Violet shows that the name has been recorded but has not been seen on a 'live' cancel (as opposed to an impression book record of a canceller sent but perhaps not issued). Yellow indicates an office for which no cancels pre 1981 have been seen. Post-1980 offices known from lists but for which no cancel has been reported are not included here.
6. The notes also include a location for each office based on information gleaned from Proud, NIPOST lists, Nigerian Gazette announcements, online gazetteers and maps, and Google. Location details reflect the states and Local Government Areas (or equivalent) into which Nigeria was divided at the time.

This list was finalised in April 2021 – highlighted text shows changes / additions from the list version published in March 2020

Section 8 b: The Type Descriptions.

This part describes the appearance of the cancel Types, according to the classification schemes given in Jones edition 2 and in Ince and Sacher. The first part deals with the cancels shown in Jones, the second deals with 'new' Jones cancels: types which do not appear in Jones but which follow on Jones' type numbers. The third part deals with the cancels described in Ince and Sacher.

Part 1: The Jones Type Descriptions

All of the Types described by Jones are included below, with the exception of the 'specials' on page 281 of his book. The images have been scanned from Jones' own images, with permission of WASC. I have not checked each image for dimensional accuracy. The images are intended as a guide to the appearance of the cancel type rather than a totally accurate illustration but in some cases new images have been drawn where it seemed necessary.

The Occurs column gives (approximately) the number of cancels of this type mentioned in the Cancels-by-Office List.

The Comments are my own and are intended to emphasise the characteristic features of the type, its variability, and how it differs from similar types.

Type	Occurs	Image	Comment	Type	Occurs	Image	Comment
JS6	25		Two images for the type (see right). Equivalent to IS-S 6. Occurs with a range of codes including none.	JS6	See JS6 left		Two images for the type (see left). Equivalent to IS-S 6. Occurs with range of codes including none.

JS7	16		JS7, 7A and 7B follow on from similar types in IS: IS-S 7A, 7B, 7C, first used in Southern Nigeria. JS7 has a two-digit year slug, JS7A a 4 digit year slug, while JS7B has small crosses in place of the side dots. May or may not have time code	JS7A	See JS7 left		See JS7. Has four-digit year There is a special case with Opobo, which has 2 JS7As: one as left, and one without a visible inner ring
JS7B	15		See JS7. The B sub-type has small side crosses	JS8	2		With only 2 examples (Ogoja, Owo), this is an unusual postmark. The Owo eg is reported as having a 1 line date.
JS9	2		Only 2 examples, both from Ilaro. Essentially the same, one with inverted date line. Jones' image agrees with the image in Proud	JL1	1		The IS Lagos type 13 was a common cancellation pre 1914, but only the Abeokuta example shown is known post 1914
JL2	1		The 'killer' cancel shown was widely used in Lagos pre 1900, but an example must have been retained and re-purposed to cancel loose mail at Ibadan (and ?Lagos) in the 1950s.	JN3	22		This is a broad type, equivalent to IS-N 2 but IS usually sub-divide it. Proud gives several clearly different types for some offices. Harris does likewise. Notes in the lists under individual offices explain the finer differences.

JN4	16		Northern Nigeria type used quite widely after 1914. Maltese cross at foot, may be less pronounced than in image. Cancel had loose type, so town name may be shifted, missing letters etc. Includes egs with double spaced letters (Naraguta has both normal and wide-spaced)	JN5	12		AS JN4 but with the letters NN following town name. Made use of loose type so can be variable (especially in case of Offa)
JN6	4		Used at Baro, Ilorin, Minna and (pre-1914) Zungeru.	J1	3		3 egs. 1 from Arochuku, 2 from Lagos (1 as shown, the other recorded as 'close spaced' 1 date only). Not in Proud, though D38 is possible (that Proud image shows Maltese cross at foot, like JN4)
J2	22		Text letters normally spaced, gap between rings >=5mm. G in Nigeria normal shape. Some variability (eg 2 very similar cancels from Calabar). New image	J3	8		Similar to J2, but gap between rings c 1mm less and words elongated round circle: G in Nigeria especially . New image

J4	5		Distinguishing feature of this pre-1930 skeleton postmark is POST OFFICE before or after the office name. Date on 1 or 2 lines, NIGERIA at foot.	J5	90		30m skeleton cancel. Quite variable, usually town above, NIGERIA below, but may include POSTAL AGENT. NIGERIA may be spaced, the date on 2 or 1 line. Almost all are pre-1939. J16 is very similar but almost all are 1938 or later. No offices seem to have used a J5 and J16 at the same time.
J6	35		27 / 28 mm, heavy sidebars and a 4 digit year, Sidebar length varies with office name and thickness varies too. Very similar / identical to J11 – no clear general difference. And J9 is J6 with the '19' missing from the year (or very faint). See also J11 (some offices eg IBADAN have both)	J7	4		4 offices: Others are Kaduna North (which also has dot between names), Enugu, and Lagos, where none of the cancels seen or shown in Proud offer a convincing J7. Diameters not always 28mm. A couple of J8 examples also have a dot between names
J8	51		26-27mm diameter, usually narrow sidebars, usually with time. But, sidebars may be significantly thicker, may be without time (egs without time may be classified as J8 or as J12).	J8A	3		Only 3 examples, the illustrated one, Calabar with J8 and J8A (unclear how they differ) and another mentioned in Jones' notes, from Warri, probably equivalent to Proud D9, which was set with time early on.

J9	5		As J6 / J11 but with no type impression for '19' in year. Although Awka is his type example, Jones reclassified the Awka cancel from J9 to J11 in edition 2.	J10	45		Typically no time. Date central or at least not almost entirely below midline, side bars generally heavy. 26 – 27mm diameter. See also J12 which is variable and can look like J10.
J11	8		4 figure year, though the '19' may be missing in later egs. 27+mm diameter, side bars usually heavy. J6 can be very similar / hard to distinguish.	J12	72		Though generally without time (but NB Abakaliki) this is a variable type. At one extreme it is 26.5mm with narrow sidebars, like J8 without time. At the other it is 28+mm, central date short heavy sidebars very similar to J14 but with 2 digit year. In the middle it overlaps with J10. Best to look at individual office descriptions for this type.
J12A	1		The only known example is the Aba one illustrated. 28mm. Perhaps the 2 digit year distinguishes it from the J14 type which has 4 digit year (and also occurs from Aba).	J13	37		A uniform type. 27mm diameter (J18 is 29/30mm), no sidebars or dots (compared to J17 / J20), date lower down, large font compared to J33 type

J14	61		A uniform type. 28 – 29mm diameter. Large font. Short heavy side bars. Date central. Year may be 2 or 4 digits.	J15	665		30mm skeleton. Characterised by PA after name (or SO or PO) and NIGERIA at foot. Positioning of words may vary, especially on re-assembled cancellers.
J16	393		As J15 but no PA	J17	83		Most with 2 dots (though may be very faint, occasionally missing – overlap with J18). Large font. Outer ring 28.5 – 29mm. Inner 17.5 – 19mm. J20 very similar. Some offices have both J17 and J18 (Abeokuta, Degema, Gusau) and hard to separate. A few egs include time (eg Ibadan, Onitsha). New image.
J18	22		Outer ring is 28.5 – 29.5 mm diameter, inner 18 – 19 mm. Date central. Large font. No side dots. See also J13. J17 / J20 have dots at 3 and 9 o'clock	J19	2		Very similar to J14 but Jones uses this for Lagos BO and Ibadan BO only.

J20	32		No clear distinguishing feature from J17 – same size ranges, dots, font, date position. Although, when both are found for same office there are generally small differences, these are not generic.	J21	3		Diameter 29.5 to 30mm. Lagos. Also used at Calabar and Port Harcourt, though shorter heavier sidebars and 28mm diameter in those cases. See also J36, which is hard to distinguish.
J22	3		The 3 egs of J22 (Egbede Ohuan Benin, Ewu Urhobo Ughelli, Moroa River Gudi) are all well within the J42 or J42[A] type range. New image	J23	3		This type is specific to the Kaduna Junction SO cancellations
J24	1		This type is specific to this one postmark, Calabar Proud type D23.	J25	5		Offices with J25 are: Brown St Oshodi, Igbaja Ilorin, Mapo Hill Ibadan, Sabongari Kano and Sabongari Zaria. In the lists this Oni Ijebu cancel is classified as J15. No special feature distinguishes these from J15, J16.
J26	3		3 offices: Ibadan BO, Lagos BBO, Wamba PO. Otherwise no differences from J15 / 16 skeleton cancel.	J27	1		This type is specific to this one postmark, Lagos Proud SL3

J28	2		Type specific to this postmark, and to a similar one with LAGOS on top, GPO at foot (Proud types D66 – D73)	J29	4		A very specific type. Double circle, 28/29mm diameter with office name SO at top, dots on either side and the controlling office name at foot. Abonnema, Etinan, Lafenwa, Mapo Hill.
J30	1		Type specific to this postmark which was used on mail from military bases	J31	553		23.5 – 24mm diameter, office name followed by controlling office, occasionally a dot or a hyphen between, or PA or BO or SO. Asterisk above date, very occasionally missing. Nothing at foot. No number following office name. 1 pre-1960 eg (Agodi BO Ibadan), the are rest post independence. See also J57, J69, J88, J105
J32	4		30mm skeleton with MAILS or TOWNSHIP after office name: Benin City Mails, Benin City Township, Calabar Mails, Jos Mails	J33	196		27mm double ring cancel, with NIGERIA at foot. As J34 but no time slug. Offices often had both J33 and J34. See also J53

J34	59		27mm double ring cancel, with NIGERIA at foot. As J33 but with time slug. Offices often had both J33 and J34. Font size usually same as shown in the J33 image. See also J47, 48, 71	J35	41		30mm skeleton, mainly used for offices with Street or Road in name (not all – eg Sabongari Kano), + town, making a long name round circle. Most do not have Nigeria in text, but a few do. A few offices eg Ojuelegba St Surulere have a very similar cancel, classified as J68
J36	1		Not sure how this differs from the more common type J21. Jones lists J21 as 30mm diameter, J36 as 29mm diameter. Almost certainly more than 1 of this general canceller design were in use, but difficult to tell apart. Jones' drawing probably over-emphasises the lettering	J37	236		23.5 – 24mm diameter, NIGERIA at foot. Usually * above date but not always. J42 / 42^{A} is the same but has office name followed by controlling office.
J38	0/1		The only one of this type, and actually not mentioned in Jones' main list. It does appear in Proud, as type D9.	J39 and J39^{A}	32 and 13		30mm skeleton with a one line date. J39^{A} has * above date. J39 doesn't. See also J104, though that tends to have a star rather than a true asterisk. Typically the font size is a little larger than J104. But, J39 is also used for cancels with 2 line date, and it is hard to distinguish these from J41 (PA). Also eg with NIGERIA at foot (should be J43?).

J40	5		Type is 30mm skeleton. Egs from: Strachan St Ebute Metta; Jebba St Ebute Metta and Egerton Rd Lagos. New image.	J41	745		This 30mm skeleton comes in two main sub-types. One as shown with POSTAL AGENCY in full, the other with simply PA (or BO) at the foot of the cancel.
J42 and J 42[A]	34 and 125		J42[A] has an * above the date J42 doesn't (and is less common), but may have 19 instead. Office name followed by controlling office name (see also J37). Usually no dot between the names.	J43	29		30mm skeleton. Typically with office name, PA, NIGERIA and date in one line with * above. Occasionally no *, or (as shown left) a 2 line date incorporating *.
J44	3		SO above. Office name at foot: Port Harcourt, Kano City, Kano Sabongari.	J45	54		Town name, no numeral after it (see J 61). Very thin side bars, NIGERIA at foot. Usually but not always with time. New image
J46	333		30mm skeleton with office name, followed by PA and nothing at foot of cancel. Includes a few cancels with no PA (eg Lagos, Ife University, Ilorin)	J47	6		26.5mm diameter. Offices: Kaduna North PO, Lagos GPO (3 cancels), Mapo Hill BO, Port Harcourt BO. University College BO is J71 though it looks identical. New image.

J48	3		Specific Lagos canceller (with 1 or 2 or 3 after NIGERIA at foot). Hyphen shown here may be a dot, or missing.	J49	1		Specific to this canceller. Other Kaduna Junction cancellers with CPC exist (see J118 also). New image.
J50	3		27mm diameter, with office identification number at foot. Also at Buguma and Iwo.	J51	106		One of 3 common types which are 22-24mm diameter, and have the office ID number at the foot (cf J58, J76). J51 has no counter number after town name (unlike J76, though there are a few egs in which a cancel with counter number is identified as J51). No controlling office name (unlike J58). Font may be 'normal' or large. Usually with * occasionally without, occasionally with '19' or '8'.
J52	14		Essentially J41 (PA) for an office name including ROAD or STREET etc. See also J35	J53	3		Bajulaiye Court Lagos, Campos Square Lagos and BBO Lagos. J33 style, though Bajulaiye eg has J45-style short lines between name and NIGERIA at foot.

J54	7		Usually office name (without GPO) then NIGERIA. Number at foot. In some cases it is the office ID number, in others it is not.	J55	116		27mm diameter, continuous line between circles from end of office name to start. May have a number after town, but usually not. May have POST OFFICE after town name (eg BONNY) There are several specialised Jones Types with similar continuous line round (eg J90, J99 etc)
J56	37		26.5 to 27mm diameter. Nothing between circles except office name. Date format usually with time, but may involve an * or no time. May have counter no after town name, or 'HO' or 'POST OFFICE'.	J57	78		Similar to J31, which has office name followed by controlling office. J57 does not show controlling office (several J57 egs should be J31 on this basis). Font size often larger. * sometimes missing. See also J88 (similar but has counter number after name), J105 (office plus control)
J58	76		'Office name' hyphen 'controlling office name' Office ID number at foot. No counter number. Usually with *, occasionally without.	J59	17		Office name at top, occasionally followed by 'PA'. Controlling office at foot.

J60	38		Office name at top, which may be followed by a counter number. Numeral at foot, which may or may not be the office ID number. May or may not show time. Very similar to J95.	J61	13		AS J45 but with office name followed by counter number
J62	7		30mm skeleton cancel with widely spaced letters. One example has PA at foot, others have no indication. There are however other cancels with widely spaced town names not classified as J62	J63	62		30mm skeleton with PO at foot (spacing and size of PO varies). Date on 2 lines, occasionally on 1 line. Year may be 2 or 4 digits. Instead of PO may be SO, BO, HO or SUB PO
J64	3		Two J64s are variations from Ibadan University College (see left). The third is Moloney St Lagos, re-assigned to J64 in Jones' notes (was J46)	J65	27		30mm skeleton. Some as shown but others have PO, SO or SUB PO instead (so are essentially the same as J63). A few offices have J63 and J65, but in all except Aba, the J65 is POST OFFICE. In the Aba case there's no good distinction from J63.
J66	15		30mm skeleton. Variable. Most include SUB PO, most have words continuously clockwise. However, several have SUB PO counter-clockwise at foot (like J65), Ikoyi example is BRANCH OFFICE.	J67	4		Three are variations on the example on the left (AIRPORT letters more spaced etc). The fourth is from Ife university. See also J72

J68	29		30mm skeleton. Includes office name and controlling office, though positions and directions vary. Mostly PA (but AGODI IBADAN BO)	J69	11		Like J57, but office name followed by GPO, BO, PO, PA etc
J70	10		30mm skeleton. Office name plus BRANCH OFFICE or POST OFFICE or as left. Amawbia Awka is anomalous (it has B O at foot only)	J71	2		This cancel and a similar one from Ikeja Airport BO. Very similar to J34 type.
J72	2		This cancel and one from Kaduna Housing Estate (Kaduna at top, Housing Estate at foot counter-clockwise but not spaced out)	J73	1		As illustrated. The only example of this type
J74	1		As illustrated. The only example of this type	J75	4		4 variations on this type – small differences in the GPO or IGPO at foot

J76	94		J76 has office name but no controlling office, followed by hyphen (usually) and counter number. Office ID at foot. See also J51, J58, J88 (and some examples possibly mis-identified).	J77	1		The only example of this type – but very similar to J56. New image
J78	2		As shown left, and from Mbaitoli Sub Office, also with 'SUB OFFICE' in full	J79	5		Ikoyi and Moloney St seen, and follow this pattern. The other 3 are single examples known to Jones but not seen by me.
J80	3		Bukuru as left. Ogoja South Eastern State and Riv State Ogoja South, though neither of those includes MAILS SECTION	J81	9		As shown. Like J37 but with a counter number after the office name, with and without asterisk.
J82	1		Cancel used at Kano	J83	1		This is the only example of this type

J84	6		30mm skeleton with office name plus PA or BO or SO above, and controlling office at foot of cancel	J85	3		All 24mm, name of office plus PA or POSTAL AGENCY or POST OFFICE. Like J31, there is nothing at the foot of the cancel
J86	1		This is the only example of this type. The meaning of NH is not known.	J87	7		30mm skeleton with office name and controlling office round circle. May or may not include PA, may or may not be continuous clockwise. 4 of the 7 are Leventis or Kingsway stores.
J88	32		Cancellation includes counter number, usually without hyphen between name and number. There is no number at the base (as there is with J76).	J89	4		Lengthy office name with ID number at foot. May include HO, BO etc. Only the example shown left includes NIGERIA. See also J94, J101
J90	3		Office and controlling office, separated by dot or BO, or as left.	J91	4		All 4 are variations on University of Nigeria Nsukka Campus.

J92	3		The 3 examples all have long names (3 words or more) clockwise almost completely filling the periphery. No ID number. May have hyphen in name. May or may not have *. See also J111.	J93	13		Hard to tell how this type differs from J92. Long text: 3 words or more, may include hyphens. No counter or office ID number. May have *, or 19 instead, Text may start from top, clockwise.
J94	2		Both examples (left and University of Nsukka) have long text almost all the way round, and office ID number at foot. See also J89 and J101	J95	24		27mm, no consistent difference from J60: office name usually but not always followed by numeral, usually * but can be time instead. At foot may be Office ID as shown at left, but may be single numeral.
J96	8		Office then counter number, hyphen and office ID number.	J97	16		30mm skeleton. Office name at top, controlling office at foot (usually). 2 line date (1 eg has date in 1 line but should probably be typed as J108)
J98	3		3 egs. As left, 'AGULU PO', and eg from Yola not seen. See also J55	J99	10		27mm Office followed by controlling office. Sometimes a dot between. May or may not have time. J102 very similar (and Uyo has both – identical?).

J100	150		Office name, nothing at foot. 1 line date. May have PO / PA etc after office name. Five-pointed star above date usually, (or may have a six-pointed asterisk like J39). Aba has both J100 and J39. Some 1950s egs, J100 type was used for cancels with no PA, NIGERIA and 1 line date (and often no *)	J101	7		Very similar to J94. University of Nigeria has both types. Long office name round circle, as left with BO. 1 eg has BRANCH OFFICE in full. May or may not include a number in brackets
J102	2		Uyo and Port Harcourt. Office name, dot, NIGERIA	J103	11		Quite varied, 30mm with star over 1 line date: compare with J100, J104, J108. J103 has office name and also a descriptor, eg AIRMAIL OFFICE, HEAD OFFICE, MAILS, POST OFFICE etc
J104	187		30mm with (usually) a five-point star over 1 line date. Office name at top and an abbreviation denoting status at foot – PA, BO etc. Occasional eg with 2 line date (?mis-identified). Occasionally something else at foot (? Also mis-identified). J104A = with star over date. Some overlap with J39A	J105	8		Similar to J57, but large font and Office name followed by controlling office. Larger font that used in J31

J106	5		With / without star over 1 line date. Has PA or PO following office name rather than at foot (as in J104). Obi Ora Road has J106 variant with day of date in place of star.	J107	4		Variable type (mis-identifications??). Type eg left has very small font (cf J120). Other egs have font closer to normal size.
J108	132		This type has a star over 1 line date, and controlling office name at foot of cancel. Egs (eg Achara Layout Enugu) with words all clockwise round circle. Some egs with other text at foot such as HEAD OFFICE	J109	12		Similar to J100, but with controlling office following office name. A few of this type perhaps mis-attributed.
J110	6		As J108 but with PA or BO after office name. 1 eg with MAILS at foot (mis-identified??)	J111	9		Type consists of college / street name followed by controlling office. No ID number. See also J92.
J112	2		Examples not seen so I cannot say how this type differs from J41	J113	2		2 examples. One as shown. Other, from Port Harcourt, has 1 NIGERIA at foot, and is from the 1980s

J114	1		The only instance of this type	J115	2		As left and Diobu Port Harcourt, which has odd layout including counter number and office ID.
J116	2		As left, and Oyemekun Grammar School Akure (which could just as easily be J111 – no BO or NIGERIA	J117	1		The only example of this type
J118	1		The only example of this type. Letters at foot are C.P.C not G.P.O. as shown here	J119	1		The only example of this type
J120	1		The only example of this type. Note small font size	J121	2		As left, and Upper Igun Benin. Very small font, followed by counter number, with office ID at foot.

J122	4		Office name at foot, Office status at top (GPO, HO etc). The Lagos example has variants, with position of GPO and Lagos reversed, date in one line rather than 2. Eg from Ibadan also 1 line date (and under star)	J123	6		Type as left, but other egs have controlling office at foot instead of MAILS. May have * above date
J124	1		As left. NB J98 and J55 may both have instances with PO after the office name	J125	9		A varied type. 30mm star over 1 line date. Examples have longer office names and may have PA in title. Seems to be used where the simpler types J100 J104, J108 etc don't apply. How does this type differ from J103 though?
J128	1		Image on p 284 of Jones, but no date information. Not in Proud. Examples seen on cover.	J129	2		Image on p 284 of Jones, but no date information. Proud shows 2 versions (different date formats) as D1, D2 on p 185

J130	1		Image on p 284 of Jones, but no date information. No example seen by the author
JO1	1		Specific type used at Lagos	JO2	1		Specific type used at Lagos
JO3	4		In Jones Ed 2, this cancel style is shown in 2 sizes, as JO3 and JO10. In his update notes Jones re-classifies JO10 as JO3 and includes another 2 variants of JO3 (all under Lagos). The variants differ in diameter: 38mm, 40mm, 42.5mm, 45mm.	JO4	7		Very specific type.
JO5		 This and JO6, JO8 are included for completeness, but Jones' detailed lists do not attribute the mark to a particular Office, or give usage dates		JO6		 This and JO6, JO8 are included for completeness, but Jones' detailed lists do not attribute the mark to a particular Office, or give usage dates

JO7	3		The 3 examples are all from Lagos, and are minor variations on the illustration at left.	JO8			This and JO6, JO8 are included for completeness, but Jones' detailed lists do not attribute the mark to a particular Office, or give usage dates
JO9	1		As illustrated left	JO10		Jones image re-annotated in update as O3 (see JO3 above)	In his update notes, Jones retains JO10, under Lagos, but size, dates etc make it clear that this is actually Proud type PD5: 27mm. Double circle: LAGOS. OFFICIAL PAID round circle. At foot 2 short bars with Maltese cross at 6 o'clock.
JSR1	6		Office name centred at foot. May or may not have: code letter; side dots/crosses. However, see also JR2. Jones may have assigned this cancel without code to JR2	JSR3	4		Office name, dot, SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Proud gives a number of variants on the Lagos version of this cancel but it is difficult / impossible to tell them apart consistently.
JSR4	1		As left. Jones also lists Ifon as having this type, but in appearance that cancel is JSR1	JR1	49		Dot between town and NIGERIA, no side dots. JR3 appears the same – 2 offices (Aba, Lagos) have both J types (and are distinguishable) but no consistent distinguishing feature to separate all JR1s from all JR3s. The J images for JR1, JR3 are not the same as the equivalent Proud images for Lagos (Proud D18, D19)

JR2	3		See JSR1 also. This type same, but without code? Not an ideal distinction since otherwise identical-looking cancels (eg Sapele, Afikpo) may have a code letter pre-1914	JR3	6		See JR1. No good distinguishing feature between these 2 types.
JR4	50		JR4, JR14, JR19 are very alike, and while several offices have 2 or all 3 types, which can be distinguished for that office, there is no consistent feature to separate all JR4s from all JR14s, all JR19s (see also note under JR14)	JR5	29		See JR6, JR8. All 3 have a dot between office and NIGERIA, and 2 side dots. There appear to be no generally applicable differences separating all JR5 from all JR6, 8, but where an office has JR5 and one of the others, there is generally a distinguishing feature, usually size.
JR6	5		See comments for JR5, JR8. JR6 are 28mm or wider, but then so are JR5s. No office is given as having both JR5 and JR6 though.	JR7	1		Type specific to this cancel

JR8	7		See also JR5, JR6. Where an office has JR8 and JR5 or JR6, JR8 is a mm or so narrower (27.5 – 28mm). However, JR8 from Minna is given as 29mm, so there is no general criterion such as '28mm or narrower) which applies to all JR8	JR9	11		All are 30mm skeleton with REGD or REGISTERED, and town name (or abbreviation – EB for Ebute Metta), and NIGERIA
JR10	1		Type specific to this cancel	JR11	5		Hyphen between town and NIGERIA, and side dots (unlike JR13). However, while the example shown at left is assigned to JR11 in ed1 of Jones, in ed2 it is re-assigned to JR5 (and is the same as the Benin City cancel shown as R4 in Proud).
JR12	1		Type specific to this cancel	JR13	22		Hyphen between town and NIGERIA, but no side dots (unlike JR11)
JR14	104		See notes for JR4 about this and JR19. Jones mentions that in JR4 the loop of the first R in REGISTERED is narrower than in JR14, and that is true for the egs shown from Aba. However, it is not a consistent	JR15	10		As JR4 but has BO after the office name (see also JR21)

			difference between all JR4 and all JR14
JR16	2		Example shown left, and one from Zaria.	JR17	4		Two examples from Lagos, one Kingsway Stores Lagos, and one from Strachan St.
JR18	1		Type specific to this cancel	JR19	17		See notes for JR4 and JR14. There are no clear distinguishing features applicable to all examples assigned to each type.
JR20	7		See also JR30 and JR31. No specific general feature other than the length of the office name followed by controlling office	JR21	1		Only example of the type. It is not clear how it differs from JR15. Jones has both JR15 and JR21 from Kano Sabongari.

JR22	1		Only example of the type. It differs from JR1, JR3 in terms of size: 26mm wide instead of 29mm.	JR23	6		Office name followed by counter number in brackets.
JR26	51		See also J29. Offices may have both, with overlapping date range too, but no consistent distinguishing feature. No clear size difference. Either / both may have a dot after the counter number), or a hyphen before the counter number. Counter number may be in brackets.	JR27	4		Aba, Calabar, Jos, Kaduna. Similar to JR24 but includes NIGERIA

JR28	3		Office name, then BO, then controlling office: Agodi BO Ibadan, City Hall BO Lagos, Mapo Hill BO Ibadan. No NIGERIA after name.	JR29	16		See J26. I am unsure what the distinguishing feature is. Some (eg Itu) even have the counter number in (), but that's not true of all. In case of Ikot Ekpene, in Jones' notes he re-assigned all post 1966 egs of JR26 to JR29 (and town name is 1mm longer) but other difference??
JR30	2		Office name followed by controlling office. Egs as left, and Mokwa Jebba	JR31	1		Only example, and see JR20. Smaller type in this image (but no example seen by the author)
JR32	1		Only example of this type. The other 30mm Lagos Kingsway Stores registered cancels with different layout are classified as JR17)	JR33	7		All have town on top, followed by either BO or a hyphen, then the controlling office. NB JR43, JR62 are very similar
JR34	27		Office name on top, usually but not always followed by counter number.	JR35	1		Only one of this type. New image

JR36	5		All examples are from offices under Yaba: Ikeja Yaba, Shomolu / Somolu Yaba, Surulere Yaba	JR37	1		The only example of this type
JR38	2		Both examples are from Enugu, with and without space between the words	JR39	13		All have office name followed by BO, PO, HO, or HQ etc.
JR40	5		30mm skeleton, REGISTERED at top Office name at foot (or reversed in case of Buguma). 3 variants from Lagos.	JR41	6		Office name at top. Ifon, Ondo, Onitsha, Orlu, Oyo, Port Harcourt. NB only ORLU has the spelling error shown
JR42	3		Has office ID number below date, foot has office name followed by controlling office	JR43	2		Both egs (as left and from Arondizuogu) also have cancels of similar layout (JR33, JR34) so it is not clear what is distinctive about JR43

JR44	2		(Possibly) 3 egs, as left, Agodi Gate, Oshodi. Uncertain that Ogodi Gate actually exists, whereas this cancel from Agodi Gate definitely exists. I've not seen a clear Oshodi JR44, though Oshodi JR34 certainly exists.	JR45	3		Examples from Eku, Oleh, Ora. Office name, hyphen, office ID number. New image.
JR46	1		One instance – NB small font size for town name	JR47	2		Igbaja Ilorin and as left. See also JR30. Not clear what the distinguishing feature is.
JR48	6		Office name followed by POST OFFICE or SUB PO (one eg, from Odogbolu not clear)	JR49	1		The only example of this type
JR50	3		30mm date in one line. Office name and REGISTERED	JR51	1		The only example of this type

JR52	2		As left and from Makurdi	JR53	1		The only example of this type
JR54	1		The only example of this type? Nigeria has been cut out during Biafran secession. Cancel remained in use afterwards. See JR61 in New Types list: essentially the same type. New image.	JR55	1		The only example of this type, though there are a range of variants on this cancel.
				JSP2	6		No other type like it
JP1	7		JP1 and JP4 cover all the other cancellations of this pattern (JP15 is a steel die canceller). This includes variety in diameter, variety in font (serif, sans-serif). Mostly just town name but see left. See also JP4	JP2	3		Kano, Jos and Kaduna. Heavy font and diameter varies from 25mm to 22mm (as left)

JP3	21		Type usually with town name, followed by NIGERIA, usually below, occasionally on same line. Jones also uses JP3 for Lagos parcel cancels where something else follows the town name (eg PP, PARCEL POST)	JP4	52		See JP1. No clear criterion for distinguishing JP1 and JP4. Both include a diverse range of rubber parcel cancellers
JP5	1		The only example of this type.	JP6	1		The only example of this type. New image.
JP7	3		Calabar, Lagos (both with hyphen between town and NIGERIA), and Ibara (town name only)	JP8	2		Examples from Makurdi and Warri
JP9	1		The only example of this type.	JP10	1		The only example of this type. New image.

JP11	3		As left, and from Kano, and from Maiduguri	JP12	9		As left, or with town name followed by PARCELS. NIGERIA at foot.
JP13	5		PARCELS followed by town, side bars and Maltese cross at foot	JP14	1		The only example of this type. First used in 1910.
JP15	10		25mm steel die cancel, characterised by double rim. In several offices primarily (?solely) used on registered mail	JP16	2		2 examples: as left and from Aba (in which PARCELS letters are upside down).
JP17	1		The only example of this type.	JP18	1		The only confirmed example of its type – seen with counter numbers 1,2.

JP19	2		As left (no NIGERIA at foot), and also from Ife	JP20	2		As left (also with A after NIGERIA) and an example from Oshogbo (not seen by the author)
JP21	3		Abeokuta, Enugu and Oshogbo. All conform to the type shown left.	JP22	1		The only example of this type.
JSB1	90		SAVINGS BANK at foot, flanked by office ID numbers	JSB2	2		As left, and Lagos Catholic Mission St. MO & SB at foot
JSB3	5		SB at foot, flanked by office ID numbers	JSB4	2		Oyo and Uyo. Uyo is 1 date and example not seen by PCR - suspect Uyo may be mis-reading of Oyo.

JSB5	3		Ifo, Imo and Mapo Hill MO & SB NIGERIA at foot	JSB6	4		30mm. All have either MO and SB or just SB, plus office name
JSB7	6		Office name followed round circle by either SAVINGS BANK or MONEY ORDER. No office ID number or NIGERIA.	JSB8	1		The only example of this type.
JT1	4		Type as shown on left. Spanning pre and post 1914. Most but not all examples came from telegrammes.	JT2	4		Layout and size as left. TELEGRAPHS at top. Office name at foot.
JT3	13		Office name followed by TELEGRAPHS (occasionally a dot between). NIGERIA at foot.	JT4	8		Office name at top, TELEGRAPHS at foot.

JT5	4		30mm, with office name, NIGERIA, TELEGRAPHS arranged round circle (not necessarily in that order)	JT6	5		See also JT7. No clear consistent difference between these 2 types. Both mostly have no *, both may or may not have dot between town and NIGERIA at foot.
JT11	12		As J10 but without NIGERIA at foot. Several examples where town name comes before TELEGRAPHS	JT12	4		TELEGRAPHS at top, office name at foot (no NIGERIA). From Abak, Imo, Mapo Hill and Okitipupa

JT13	5		Office name, usually hyphen, then TELEGRAPHS (order may be reversed) Office ID at foot. Font generally appears normal size, usually sans serif	JT14	12		Very similar to JR13 but includes counter number. Order of TELEGRAPHS and name may also be reversed
JT15	1		The only example of this type	JT16	2		Example as left. Also from Lagos but no dates given by Jones

I have not included comments or number of occurrences for the Jones TPO and Mobile Office types, for each is intended for a particular cancel rather than as a Type describing a cancel found at several offices.

Part 2: The new Jones Types

The first table shows new types described by Jones in notes he compiled after 1999. I've added brief descriptions of each.

The second table describes brand new types. I've given each a number to carry on from Jones' numbers, together with a brief description.

New types from Jones' notes

JR56	2		New type in Jones update. As left. The other eg is Ayila with REG POST OFFICE round the circle	JR57	1		New type in Jones update. May have a number or letter at foot (Onitsha, Secretariat). New image
JR58	8		New type in Jones update. Office name followed by counter number. May include controlling office	JR59	9		New type in Jones update. Office name, no counter number. May include controlling office
JR60	1		New type in Jones update. The only example of this type. Office is short for Ughelli	JR61	1		New type in Jones update. The only example of this type. See also JR54. Is 1980 too late for an ex-Biafra canceller to still be in use? (also eg from 77)
JR62	1		New type in Jones update. See also JR33. Entry in J update is ambiguous, reclassifying JR33 to JR62. No clear difference seen by PCR between early and late examples. New image.	JR63			New type in Jones update.

JR64			New type in Jones update. The only example of this type. New image.	JSP2

New types, not mentioned in Jones

These images have been traced from scans. Where the same new type, with different descriptors, is used by a particular office, the different types are distinguished by a letter after the type name (for example J131A, J131B etc).

This list is inevitably incomplete and it is hoped that fellow collectors will send me (paul@redsite.org) details of any other new types they find.

NB, the J138 type is intended to use for all 'skeleton' postmarks which do not fit into an existing Jones category (for an example of a skeleton postmark see JR56 and JR60 in the table above)

Type	Image	Comment
J131		30mm diameter, large font. Office name followed by descriptor with or without counter number. No number at foot. Many larger offices had several variants on this type, differing in descriptor (MAILS, or REG, or DLY etc)

J132		As J132 but with office ID number at foot. Could merge with J132 above, but several offices have both, and in general Jones usually declared a separate category for cancellations with and without office ID numbers. Many larger offices had several variants of this type, differing in descriptor
J133		35mm diameter. Horizontal lines of text. The number of lines variesv- 5 at most: office name, office status, date, controlling office (in this case Ibadan), descriptor. Descriptor is most commonly MAILS 1. Can be REG, or other. May or may not include a number. Many larger offices had several variants on this type, differing in descriptor
J134		Double ring: outer 35mm diameter, inner 24mm diameter. Stars (or asterisks) at 9 and 3 o'clock. Office name and (usually) status at top. Descriptor at foot (varies) with or without number. Many larger offices had several variants on this type, differing in descriptor
J135		Double ring: outer 35mm diameter, inner 20.5mm diameter. Heavy font. Office at top, descriptor at foot. Less common. Can include types with lengthy descriptor (but see also J140) and different date format from the one shown left. Includes examples in which outer ring is 32 - 32.5mm, inner 19.5mm

J136		Double ring: outer 27.55mm diameter, inner 20mm diameter. Office name, status, descriptor at top. NIGERIA (usually) at foot. 1 line date between two horizontal bars across the inner part of the cancel. Many larger offices had several variants on this type, differing in descriptor
J137		The only example seen of this type, so status uncertain
J138	General 30mm skeleton	J138 is used to describe 30mm 'skeleton based' (ie assembled from loose type) cancels with 1 line date under a star which do not immediately belong in the existing categories of J100, J104, J108, J110. J138 cancels have normal sized text arranged round the edge giving office name and other information such as 'SURF MAIL', 'POSTMEN DLY' etc, which describes the use of the canceller. J138 provides a catch-all type to be used, for example, to classify the many new Lagos types used as transit or special function cancellations.
J139		23 – 24mm diameter, often shows surrounding square matrix. May have fewer lines of text.

J140		Double ring, outer is 30 or 32.5mm diameter, inner 21 or 20 mm diameter. 1 line date. Text at top lengthy.
J141		Double ring, inner interrupted by date line. Outer is 35mm diameter, inner 26mm diameter. Only example seen is on a first flight commemorative post card
J142		Oval 33.5mm X 25mm approximately. 1 example only seen. University of Port Harcourt. Top right details unclear on cancel.

Part 3: The Ince and Sacher Types

The table below lists the types Ince and Sacher describe, using their numbering scheme modified by an added letter to indicate which area the type refers to (Ince and Sacher used numbers 1 onward for each area). Where there is a particular Proud and/or Jones equivalent, it is shown in the second column. The third column describes the cancellation, often using the descriptions Ince and Sacher use in the body of their book.

The final column is used for a drawing where that seems necessary to provide a proper description of the cancellation. Because the emphasis here is on the identification of cancellations rather than illustration for its own sake, I have not attempted to include drawings of cancellations which seem to be unambiguously described in column 3.

Lagos
Useful reference: Lagos and Village cancels from Lagos Colony 1859-1906 Svein Vikhamar (SV) Cameo V16 #1 p14 (whole no 94) Jan 2015
IS-L 1	PD1	Crown intersecting the top of single circle. PAID / AT central. LAGOS ccw at foot. Mainly as handstamp but also seen as canceller
IS-L 2	D1 & D4	Single circle 19.5mm diameter. B over LAGOS (which is horizontal) and a 2 line date. Nothing at foot
IS-L 3	D3	Double ring 30.5mm POST OFFICE LAGOS top WEST COAST OF AFRICA at foot. 1 line date across the centre. Handstamp only, generally in blue-green
IS-L 4	Not in P	A small circular canceller. LAGOS top, PAID at foot No verified record in use – known only from Robson Lowe Encyclopedia reference.
IS-L 5A	D6 & D7	L to S distance is16mm. 20mm diameter. Codes A and B. Proud images don't correspond well with IS types. A similar cancel 22mm in diameter may exist.
IS-L 5B	D6 & D7	L to S distance is 17.75mm. 21-22mm diameter. O is more oval in shape. Code A only	IS-L 6	K1	'Killer' cancellation. Lozenge shaped, 7 bars. Capital serif L in centre

IS-L 7A	K3 & K4	'Killer' cancellation. Thumbprint shape with 9 bars. Unsure of a clear difference between the 2 Proud types. NB also late use of 9 bar killer at Lagos or/and Ibadan to cancel loose letters.
IS-L 7B	K2 & K5	'Killer' Thumbprint shape with 8 bars Unsure of a clear difference between the 2 Proud types
IS-L 8A	D8	21mm diameter Code A. The vertical distance between foot of the L and the top of the W is 4mm
IS-L 8B	D8	21mm diameter Code A. The vertical distance between foot of the L and the top of the W is 3-3.5mm
IS-L 9A	D10-15	Codes A, B. Used up to the start of 1900. Diameter: 23.75mm or more. L-W distance is 6mm.
IS-L 9B	D10-15	Codes A, B, C, none. Used after the start of 1900. Diameter: up to 23.6mm. L-W distance is 6.2mm or more. For more on IS-L9A and B see Redhead P. & Vikhamar S. Letter Codes in Lagos Cancels (2018) Cameo Vol 19 No. 104 p113
IS-L 9C		Single circle c 23mm diameter. Used in offices elsewhere in Lagos Colony. Office name top. LAGOS W.D. or LAGOS E.D. at foot. Badagry and Leckie known. Includes code A, B or none (Badagry)
IS-L O10	PD3	LAGOS W.C.A top. Date at foot. OFFICIAL PAID in 2 lines across the middle.
IS-L 11		Single circle c24mm diameter. Used in offices elsewhere in Lagos State. POST OFFICE top. Office name at foot.
IS-L 12	D16	Single circle c23mm diameter. Office name at top. Nothing at foot. 3 line centre: time / date / year. Essentially IS14 with time, though perhaps telegraphic use only, at Lagos at least

IS-L 13A		Office name at top W.C.A at foot. Codes A-F / None. Used in offices elsewhere in Lagos Colony
IS-L 13B		Illustration in IS shows a 23mm diameter cancel very similar to IS9B, but with W.C.A at foot. SV doubts whether this is accurate, and suggest that the 2 egs may be incomplete IS9B cancels
IS-L 13C		Described in IS as 'Similar to 13A but with LAGOS W.AFRICA below' Not illustrated, and no images in Proud of such a cancellation for the 5 offices for which IS lists this type. All 5 instead have cancels 30mm in diameter with Office name LAGOS at top W.AFRICA at foot. As suggested by SV these IS cancels should be reassigned to type IS-L 17
IS-L 14		Single circle, 23-25mm with office name top. Nothing at foot and 2 line date. Essentially the same as IS12 without the time, and both types have been reported for Oyo and Shaki
IS-L 15A	D18, 19	POST OFFICE top LAGOS W.C.A at foot. Code letters A-F and None (not all seen). From the foot of P to the tip of L is 8mm. More rounded O in POST. IS15A also occurs with BRANCH POST OFFICE at top.
	D20, 21	As above. However, from the foot of P to the tip of L is 6.5mm and the O in POST is more oval.
IS-L P.15B	PP13	Similar to above, but with PARCEL POST top, LAGOS W.C.A at foot. Code letters A-F

IS-L 17		Office name LAGOS at top W.AFRICA at foot.	IS-L Ry18		Straight line office name only: IBADAN, IDDO known

The Royal Niger Company Territories

Treated in detail in Ince and Sacher, and most are also illustrated in Stanley Gibbons' West Africa catalogue (2nd Edition, 2012)

IS-R 1		2 images in IS: one with m/s date. 31 X 22.5mm. Double oval with outside line itself doubled. THE ROYAL NIGER COMPANY CHARTERED & LIMITED top. AKASSA at foot with cross on each side. Used at Akassa only
IS-R 2	SG1	39 X 24mm. Double oval with outside line itself doubled. THE NIGER TERRITORIES top. AKASSA at foot. P at 9 o'c, O at 3 o'c 1 line date with POST above it and OFFICE below. Used at Akassa only
IS-R 4		42 X 26mm. Double oval with outside line itself doubled. AGENT GENERAL top. NIGER TERRITORIES at foot. Maltese crosses at 9 and 3 o'c. Used at Akassa and at Asaba.
IS-R 7		Double line rectangle 41.5 X 21mm, with curved voided corners 3 lines of text. AGENT GENERAL / date / NIGER TERRITORIES. Used at Akassa and at Asaba.

IS-R 9A & B	SG5	Single line rectangle 49 X 30.5mm corners cut off on diagonal. 5 lines of text. THE ROYAL NIGER COMPANY / CHARTERED & LIMITED / date / POST OFFICE. / AKASSA. All lines in sans-serif font. Used at Akassa only. IS9A has REC^{D} in place of date
IS-R 10	SG6	Double line rectangle 43.5 X 27mm 5 lines of text. THE ROYAL NIGER COMPANY / CHARTERED & LIMITED / date / POST OFFICE / BURUTU. Final 2 lines in serif font. Used at Burutu only
IS-R 11A & B	SG7	Double line rectangle 41.5 X 21.5mm, with curved voided corners 4 lines of text. THE ROYAL NIGER COMPANY / CHARTERED & LIMITED / date / POST OFFICE / BURUTU Used at Burutu. IS11B similar, with AKASSA instead.
IS-R 12A & B		Double line rectangle 43.5 X 27mm 5 lines of text. THE ROYAL NIGER COMPANY / CHARTERED & LIMITED / date / CUSTOMS DEPT. / BURUTU Used at Burutu. IS12B similar, with AKASSA instead.
IS-R 13	SG8	Double oval with single outer line. LOKOJA top POST OFFICE at foot. Crosses at approx. 9.30 and 2.30 o'c. 1 line date
IS-R 14		Double oval with single outer line. THE ROYAL NIGER CO. C & L top ABUTSHI at foot. Crosses at approx. 8.30 and 3.30 o'c. 1 line date
IS-R 15		Double oval with single outer line. THE ROYAL NIGER COMPANY CHARTERED & LIMITED top. 1 line date with LOKOJA above and DEPOT below

Oil Rivers & Niger Coast Protectorates

IS-O 1A		Single circle 20-22mm diameter. Office name followed by RIVER. Old Calabar also issued a variety without RIVER and another shown at IS-S 1. Not seen from Warri
IS-O 1B		As 1A but with smaller (2.5 Vs 3mm high) and narrower letters. Old Calabar only
IS-O 2		Generally used for Registered mail. Not seen from Bakana, Buguma, Forcados, Qua Iboe and Sombreiro River. A square cancel c.25mm across consisting of 'four inner circles, three of which are broken, only the inner-most being complete. Triangular shaped spandrels are filled in solid at the four corners' (IS)

IS-O P3		Primarily but not exclusively used on parcels. 'a heavy outer ring approximately 27mm in diameter with a broken inner circle, the name of the town being carried through the horizontal break in the inner circle in bold sans serif type' (IS)
IS-O R4		Similar to 1A, but with REGISTERED top and nothing at foot. Used in Old Calabar only
IS-O R5		Oval, 28 X 22mm. Dot between OLD and CALABAR at foot	IS-O R6		Oval, 30/31 X 22/23mm. There are heavy dots to each side of the office name. Similar to IS R13A/B of Southern Nigeria, but those have no dots to the side or small crosses which can look like dots if over-inked
IS-O 7		40 X 30mm. Double oval with outside line itself doubled. OIL RIVERS PROTECTORATE top, office name at foot, with a double cross (?six-pointed star) on each side. 1 line date. Not recorded at Forcados, Qua Iboe, Sapele or Warri
IS-O 8		35mm diameter double circle BRITISH VICE CONSULATE top, office name at foot. (BRASS or FORCADOS or OLD CALABAR) Coat of Arms in centre

Northern Nigeria

A significant number of offices cancelled mail by hand, with office name and date, mainly in 1900-1902 period. Such mail was often stamped with the Lokoja oval in transit, either across the stamp and manuscript cancel, or elsewhere on the envelope. I'm most grateful to Ray Harris for information on the variety of IS-N 2 cancels

IS-N 1A		A single circle 25mm diameter with NORTHERN NIGERIA top and a 2 line date. No office name.
IS-N 1B		A double circle with NORTHERN NIGERIA at top, no office name. Dated AU 14 1900. Now known to be a bogus cancel used to 'convert' mint stamps into more valuable used ones

IS-N 2A, B, C & D	JN3	Double circle with Maltese cross at the foot and, cw, centred approximately at top: office name NORTHERN NIGERIA. IS sub-types differed in letter sizes from 2A (2mm) to 2D (3.5mm). IS sub-types now superseded by Ray Harris' study of this cancel.
IS-N 3	JN4	Double circle with Maltese cross at the foot and office name, cw, centered approx. at top. Both IS 3 & IS 4 used cancellers in which the type was able to move circumferentially if not adequately locked down, making for varieties.
IS-N 4	JN5	Double circle with Maltese cross at the foot. Office name followed by N N cw, centered approx. at top:.
IS-N 5	JN6	Double circle office name top. NORTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Used at Baro, Ilorin, Minna and Zungeru.
IS-N O.6		Double circle OFFICIAL PAID top, office name at foot. Known from Lokoja, Zaria and Zungeru.

Southern Nigeria

Many of these cancels continued in use after 1913 so have equivalent Jones Types

IS-S 1	D9/10	Single circle 22/23mm in diameter. OLD CALABAR RIVER top in larger font than IS-O1A & B. With dot at foot. Old Calabar only
IS-S 2		Single circle 23/23.5mm in diameter. Office name top, sidebars, and a <o> decoration at foot
IS-S 3A		Single circle 24-25mm in diameter. Office name top. Maltese cross at foot. Smaller type-face. No office with clear examples of both 3A and 3B (though both have been reported at Bonny, Calabar)

IS-S 3B		Single circle 24-28mm in diameter. Office name top. Maltese cross at foot. Larger type-face, and see above.
IS-S 4		Single circle 25-26mm in diameter. Office name top No Maltese cross at foot.
IS-S 5	D2	Single circle. OLD CALABAR top. CREEK TOWN at foot. This office only
IS-S 6A	JS6	Single circle. 22-26mm in diameter. Office name top. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot
IS-S 6B		Single circle. 24-26mm in diameter. Office name top (font larger than 6A), and dots on either side of name. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Known at Burutu, Itu, Oron and possibly Atani
IS-S 7A	JS7	Double circle. Office name top. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Dots at sides 2 figure year
IS-S 7B	JS7[A]	Double circle. Office name top. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Dots at sides 4 figure year
IS-S 7C	JS7[B]	Double circle. Office name top. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Crosses at sides 2 figure year
IS-S P8		Single circle 28-30mm diameter. PARCEL POST top flanked by dots. Office name then SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Known at Calabar, Forcados, Lagos and 'possibly Owerri' (IS). Latter ref should be to Warri which has this type.
IS-S P9	JSP4	21mm heavy double ring crossed by 2 double lines enclosing office name

IS-S P10	PP15	Double circle 28-33mm PARCEL POST then office name, top flanked by small crosses (Proud image shows dots). SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. Lagos after 1913, possibly Brass, earlier.
IS-S P11	JP14	22mm single circle. BURUTU top. PARCEL POST (with dot between) at foot. In use 1910 to 1960. This office only.
IS-S R12A		Oval 30mm across. Office name at foot, without flanking dots. Known at Agberi and Asaba only. Smaller font than R13A
IS-S R12B		Oval 27.5mm across. BURUTU at foot, no dots. This office only
IS-S R13A	JSR1	Oval 27.5 – 30mm across. Office name at foot, no flanking dots etc. Slightly larger font than R12A
IS-S R13B		As R13A but with small crosses at the sides
IS-S R13C		As R13A but with strong dots at sides. See also IS-O R6. IS use IS-O R6 for cancellers first used before 1900 then IS-S R13C for cancellers first used 1900 on, or ‘where later use is of different size’
IS-S R14A		Oval 31.6 – 36mm across. Office name, dot, SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot, and no flanking dots
IS-S R14B	JSR3	As R14A with flanking dots at the sides. Lagos has both R14A and R14B.
IS-S R15	SR4	Oval. IDAH horizontal below REGISTERED top. This office only

Travelling Post Offices

IS relied heavily upon J Ince's monograph 'The Travelling Post Offices of Nigeria, 1903 – 39' (WASC – 1991), though IS used a different numbering schedule. Proud also contains a section on travelling post offices: numbers here are taken from the section on the Niger River T.P.O (p817). There is some difficulty reconciling the accounts of TPO cancels contained in IS, Proud and in Jones. The illustrations of TPO types on p xvii of IS cannot be relied on, following a mix-up of images, and while the classification below keeps the IS type numbers, the images and descriptions derive from Ince's monograph. In the detailed lists TPOs are arranged by Jones' numbering, which is the same as the original Ince scheme

IS-T 1	D1	24.5mm single circle with NIGER TRAVELLING POST OFFICE top and a small Maltese cross at the foot
IS-T 3A	D2	Double circle TRAVELLING POST OFFICE top. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. 27-27.5mm diameter. Inner is 18.5 – 19.5mm diameter. The image on xvii of IS3A is suspect, following types mix up
IS-T 3B		Double circle TRAVELLING POST OFFICE top. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. 26mm diameter. 17.5mm diameter inner circle. There is no image of this type in IS. Ray Harris has noted the G – P space varies relative to the code letter: in some examples it is exactly above it, in others the space is to one side – ie there was more than one 26mm TPO canceller in use
IS-T 4		Double circle TRAVELLING POST OFFICE top. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot. 25.5mm diameter. Inner circle: 17mm diameter. The image on xvii of IS4 and the description on p 328 of IS are suspect, following a mix up of type images. P25 of J Ince (see top) shows what T4 looks like.
IS-T R5	R2	Oval 35mm across. TRAVELLING P.O. SOUTHERN NIGERIA at foot

Section 8 c: The Cancels-by-Office List.

Nigerian Cancels-by-Office Part 1: Aba to Ankpa

- Office name: And further brief details of the offices named in these lists are given in the Post Offices List. Magenta text shows an office not listed in either Jones or Proud. The number in brackets (XXX) after some office names refers to the Post Office Identification Number, which may appear on some cancels from that office.
- Jones / Proud: Are shorthand references to, respectively, the 'The cancellations and postmarks of Nigeria 1914-80 edition 2' by Neville Jones and 'The Postal History of Nigeria' by Edward Proud
- Proud type: No entry signifies that the cancel concerned is not detailed in Proud. Magenta text shows a cancel variation not noted in Proud
- Jones type: As published in the Jones Type Description list and the New Jones Type Description list. No entry signifies no published Jones type. Magenta text shows a cancel not noted in Jones.
- Comment: Additional information about the cancel which may help identification. Ctr no: refers to a number shown on some cancels which identifies the post office counter at which the canceller was used. Words in CAPITALS are as shown on the cancellation itself. 'top' means words are at the top of the cancel, and which run clockwise (cw). 'At foot' means bottom of cancel running counter-clockwise (ccw). Other word arrangements are described in terms of 'X o'c' – clock-face position of the start of the words. Use of '/' generally denotes 'next text starts on a new line'. ? indicates uncertainty – not the character itself
- Earliest / Latest known dates: Referred to in comments as Ekd, Lkd. Dates given are the most recent available, and are shown as they appear on the cancel (where known). Dates in black come from Jones (or if suffixed ^{P}, from Proud). Dates in magenta come from the author's collection or from other collectors. A date in italics shows that the year has been estimated from the date of issue of the cancelled stamp. Date highlighted in blue shows change from the previous version of this list.
- Text highlighted in blue shows important change from the previous version of this list (March 2020). Previous versions of this list are available on http://www.nigerian-post-offices.org.uk/lists.html

	IS-L R14B	R10	JSR3 No code letter. Flanking dots.As the variety of Proud types suggest, there were several cancellers in operation. Having measured 27 egs of whole cancels, all are c. 26mm 'tall', width of REGISTERED is c.22mm; width of text at foot is c 29mm. The one dimension which is variable is width, from 31mm to just under 33mm, with mean value 32mm. However, there is no clear difference by diameter in usage dates, so while the pre-1914s seem separate in time (though not in size), the post 1914 dates are not further separated here. 	IS-T 3A?	J3	Proud, IS and Jones each use their own scheme to classify these TPOs. Proud organises them by region, IS use their own numbering, give ring diameters which are 0.5 to 1mm too large, and their illustrations don't match the types. Jones uses the same classification and ring sizes as pre-IS publications, and accords with measured diameters, so will be used here. J3 = 27mm diameter outer ring, 18mm inner J3^{A} = 26 to 26.5mm diameter outer ring 17-17.5mm inner J4 = 25.5mm diameter outer ring 16-16.5mm inner There are oddities!
